Connally job--corral Demo votes for Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally said Friday he will not support Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern but rather will work to enlist Democrats in President Nixon's re-election drive.

The man who until two months ago was the only Democrat in Nixon's cabinet accused McGovern of sabotaging the President's Vietnam peace efforts and sharply criticized other McGovern positions as "radical in character."

As he emerged from a three-hour meeting with Nixon, Connally again left open the possibility he would accept any offer to be Nixon's vice presidential running mate.

"I haven't closed any doors and I don't want to," Connally said, adding that "I don't think it will be offered."

Talking with newsmen on the lawn at Nixon's ocean-front home, Connally said he would remain a Democrat but would "do everything in my power" in the weeks and months ahead to encourage Democrats to defect to Nixon in the general election.

The silver-haired former Texas governor came to the Western White House to brief Nixon on a 35-day, 15-nation around-the-world tour he took at Nixon's request after resigning from his cabinet post.

He said they discussed the "special assignment" Nixon said last month he had in mind for Connally. Actually, Connally said, "we talked about three different assignments."

He wouldn't name them, saying Nixon would make an announcement in a week or so, but said they were "intermittent jobs" not of a political nature, possibly involving some foreign travel.

The assignments, Connally added, are "not anything earth shaking." He ruled out a role for himself in the Vietnam peace talks and in negotiations of a nuclear arms treaty with the Soviet Union.

From the tone of Connally's comment, it was clear much of his session with Nixon dealt with politics and Nixon's re-election campaign.

Responding to a question, Connally said, "I will not support" the Democratic ticket "for the first time in my life." He said Nixon has done "a great job" and displayed "great courage" as he "transformed the foreign policy of this nation."

Connally said he finds the South Dakota senator's views "all too isolationist in character and also too radical in character." He said McGovern is sincere in those views, but that he personally finds himself

U.S. judge rules $1.90 too low Pay raise limit lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a decision that could free millions of lower income wage earners from limitations on pay raises, a federal judge ruled Friday the administration's Cost of Living Council must raise the wage-control exemption level well above the present $1.90 per hour.

U.S. District Judge William Jones said the $1.90 cutoff figure was much too low. He did not say what amount of increase would be appropriate, but he suggested the $3.35 an hour level proposed by labor appeared reasonable.

Prior to the ruling persons making $1.90 an hour or less were legally free to take whatever pay raises they could get from employers, without regard to the council's guideline calling for a limit of 5.5 per cent per year in wage increases.

Under the $1.90 cutoff figure, 9 million workers were exempt from controls. According to Labor Department estimates, a $3.35 cutoff would exempt another 14 million wage earners for a total exemption of about half the nation's nonsupervisory workers.

A Cost of Living Council spokesman said the agency was considering appealing the ruling in the federal Appeals Court.

A spokesman for the AFL-CIO, which together with other labor units filed the original suit, called the ruling "an absolute vindication of our position."

In his 20-page opinion, Judge Jones commented that the council's "alarm at prospect of an exemption from wage controls for 50 per cent of the non-supervisory working force is less convincing in light of its recent ruling exempting small businesses from both price and wage regulations."

The Pay Board, back when it still had labor and business members on it, voted down a proposal to set the exemption cutoff at $1.90 an hour, calling that figure too low. But the board could not agree on a higher figure and threw the issue back to the council, which promptly adopted the $1.90 figure.

The International Union of Electrical Workers argued that the council violated instructions from Congress to exempt low-wage workers from the pay controls. They contended that Congress intended the cutoff to be at $3.35 an hour.

This would produce an annual income of almost $7,000, which the Labor Department says is necessary for an urban family of four to maintain a "lower" standard of living.

A family with a single wage earner at the $1.90 per hour level would have an annual income of $3,952.

Pac. Phone granted a rate stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court justice Friday granted a one-week stay of a California Supreme Court decision that had ordered Pacific Telephone Co. to reduce its rates and rebate $143 million to customers.

Justice Byron R. White, acting for Justice William O. Douglas, granted the delay to give respondents time to file answers before July 20, a Supreme Court spokesman said.

The state court had ruled June 9 that the telephone company was wrongly granted a rate increase by the Public Utilities Commission and as a result should roll rates back to 1968 levels and rebate $143 million to customers.

THE DECISION also wiped out $212 million in annual rate increases.

The reduced rates and rebates had been ordered to go into effect Friday.

However, the telephone company petitioned the U.S. high court for a stay. Its petition said a delay "could harm no one," but a denial "can do irreparable harm to Pacific Telephone if it is required to pay the large amount of funds which can never be recovered if ultimately it should be held that the California Supreme Court erred."

Earlier this week, the California Supreme Court had refused the telephone company's last minute bids for a rehearing and a delay.

The California court had ruled on grounds that 1971 increases, totaling about $1 a month in metropolitan residential rates, were based on an accelerated depreciation tax accounting method the court disapproved last year.

The court contended that Pacific Telephone and General Telephone were the state's only major utilities not using accepted accelerated depreciation income tax accounting method and rebating taxes saved to consumers.

Salinger gives way to black McGovern 2nd choice loses

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Jean Westwood of Utah was approved Friday as the first woman chairman of the Democratic National Committee, but George McGovern's choice for the No. 2 spot was sidetracked for a black former state senator from New York.

McGovern tapped Mrs. Westwood for the top job in the party organization after Lawrence O'Brien stepped down at the end of two turbulent years in the job.

Members of the national committee, meeting after the 3:30 a.m. windup of the convention which selected McGovern as the nominee, quickly ratified his choice of Mrs. Westwood, a West Jordan, Utah, grandmother.

Conflicting stories emerge about the "resignation" of Lawrence O'Brien as Democratic national chairman. Story on Page A-12.

"I think we're on to a great victory in November," said Mrs. Westwood, who was one of the earliest McGovern supporters. She began working actively for him more than two years ago.

McGovern also had recommended Pierre Salinger, another of his campaign workers, a former press secretary to President Kennedy, and a U.S. senator from California, to be vice chairman to Mrs. Westwood.

But Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., proposed Basil Paterson, 46, for the job to "stay in line" with the spirit of reform designed to give fair representation to women, the young, poor people and minority groups in the party's structure.

McGovern, appearing before the committee just before leaving this convention city for Washington, said "either one of these able men would be perfectly acceptable to me."

Salinger then withdrew his name and Paterson, a former state senator, was elected by voice vote.

McGovern's acceptance of Paterson was seen as a move on his part to improve relations with black leaders, who had shied away from the South Dakota early in the campaign

McGovern, referring to the party's strained finances.

The selection of the 46-year-old Paterson, an unsuccessful candidate for New York lieutenant governor in 1970, came as a complete surprise. It came after McGovern was pressed by delegates on whether he had consulted the black community in the selection of vice chairman.

When Paterson's name was placed before the committee, Blaine Whipple, an early McGovern supporter and national committeeman from Oregon, asked: "Who is Basil Paterson?"

After his selection, Paterson told the committee the outcome was "probably as much of a surprise to you as to me. But I'm not particularly shy about opportunities."

School smallpox vaccination ends

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California children no longer will be required to have a smallpox vaccination before attending public schools, the State Board of Education decided Friday.

The board voted unanimously to drop the requirement after being told the U.S. Public Health Department was urging the change.

"The disease now is almost nonexistent and the complications of immunization are considered to be much more of a hazard than the danger of smallpox," said Eugene Rangle, chairman of the board's Policies and Programs Committee which recommended the action.

School children still will be required to be immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, polio, tetanus and measles. They also must be tested for tuberculosis.

Brentano's, the exclusive Fifth Avenue bookstore which has branches in Washington and Paris, said sales of chess sets that rent boards and a place to play at $1 an hour per player also reported a spurt in business.

Sales of books about how to play chess, which cost around $8.95 on the average, also have been good.

Chess instructors, who charge $5 an hour as a rule, have had a marked increase in business. Public chess and checker halls that rent boards and a place to play at $1 an hour per player also reported a spurt in business.

Fischer may win camera demand

Combined News Services

Organizers of the $250,000 world championship chess match between Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky said Friday they might give in to Fischer's demand and remove all television cameras from the contest hall if that is the only way to save the match.

But Gudmundur Thorarinnsson, president of the Icelandic Chess Federation, said his match committee had decided to reject a protest filed by Fischer against the award of the second game of the match to the Russian champion when the temperamental American failed to show up.

"If it all boils down to cameras or no cameras, I guess we'll try to remove them," Thorarinnsson said. The third game is set for Sunday in Reykjavik, but chess sources say it may not come off.

Father William Lombardy, Fischer's second, discounted rumors that the American chessmaster was flying home.

"I haven't heard anything about that and I hope it's not true," Father Lombardy said. "Everything is still up in the air. We have settled nothing so far."

Earlier Friday, Fischer charged that tournament organizers seemed to "upset and provoke me" deliberately.

Fischer said that if forfeit ruling were reversed and all cameras were removed, he would go ahead with the match. This demand came despite the fact the movie and television rights allowed the Icelandic Chess Federation to offer a record $125,000 purse for both players.

Thorarinnsson said that if the match was stopped by Fischer's disqualification, the organizers would not pay the loser's share.

The reigning Miss Universe, Georgina Rizk of Lebanon, lost the benefits of her title Friday when she failed to show up for the plane that was to fly her to Puerto Rico to crown her successor.

Miss Rizk said Thursday she would not go to Puerto Rico because she feared reprisals for the deaths of 16 Puerto Ricans at the May 30 Tel Aviv airport massacre. The killers were Japanese terrorists whom Israel says were hired by Palestinian guerrillas operating from bases in Lebanon.

Harold Glasser, president of Miss Universe, Inc., organizer of the pageant, said he was "at a loss to understand the reasons given" for Miss Rizk's failure to board her plane at Beirut Airport.

"We are distressed that this action has been taken, causing Miss Rizk to forfeit all the honors and awards due to her as the current Miss Universe," he added. The finals, at which Miss Rizk was to crown her successor, are scheduled for July 29.

The official, the AEC said, is William T. Mobile home tax fight isn't over

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

County Assessor Philip Watson said Friday he probably will appeal a Superior Court judge's decision invalidating his recently-imposed property tax on mobile homes.

Watson told a press conference he considered the decision handed down by Judge Harold F. Collins Thursday "awful bad."

"I don't think the judge tried to decide the legal issue but merely got the matter out of his court so that the appeal court could make the decision," he said.

He said he had ordered a transcript of the decision and would decide after studying the document whether to appeal.

Told that at least three of the five supervisors had indicated they would be opposed to an appeal, Watson said he would go ahead anyway.

"I believe I have the jurisdiction to decide an appeal," he said. "If the board of supervisors votes against an appeal and orders county counsel not to represent me, I'll hire outside counsel and pay him with county funds."

Watson decided to tax the mobile homes earlier this year claiming they were not "mobile" and that they should be subjected to the same property levy as fixed residences. He went ahead assessing more than 30,000 mobile homes in the county and later sent out tax bills. Mobile home owners, who already were required to pay a 2 per cent "in lieu" tax to the Department of Motor Vehicles, objected to his action on the grounds they were being double taxed and filed a class action suit against Watson.

Judge Collins ruled that

Watson should abandon the tax plan saying the assessor had "acted without authority, unreasonably and beyond his legal rights."

Watson said at the press conference he believed the basis of the ruling was that the state had preempted the taxation of mobile homes. He said the decision also apparently made a distinction between mobile homes as being those that retain an axle or wheels and "modular housing" meaning a mobile home without wheels.

He said until some of these issues are clarified he would not be in a position to judge whether an appeal would be worthwhile. Meanwhile, county officials said about 3,000 mobile home owners already had paid their taxes with the money being impounded on order of the board of supervisors.

Watson said that while the matter is under appeal mobile home owners have three options about payment of their tax bills.

He said they could refuse to pay until the final appeal to the Supreme Court had been argued. But persons doing this would risk the payment of penalties and interest should the court finally rule in favor of Watson.

The second option would be to pay the tax under protest and wait for the final outcome while the third would be to pay the tax and file for a refund of the "in lieu" tax from the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Watson said that in the case of those who make their payment, the court might rule that they be awarded accrued interest from the time of payment until the final court decision.

Watson's assessments on the county's mobile homes amounted to $36.8 million which at the current tax rate would generate about $4 million in taxes.

Police learn of driver's death

Traffic accident investigators for Harbor Division police discovered Friday that a driver injured in a June 17 crash had died June 23 in Long Beach Veterans Hospital. No notice of the death had been received from the Los Angeles coroner.

The driver, Alberto Devere, 28, of 1033 "C" Walk, Wilmington, a cook, suffered massive head injuries when his car went out of control after crossing a dip in Pacific Coast Highway at Alameda Street, Wilmington, and crashed into a building. He was taken first to Harbor General Hospital, and several days later was transferred to the Veterans hospital.

Devere's death raised the Harbor Division's 1972 traffic toll to 21, nearly double last year's 12 for the same period. The division includes San Pedro, Wilmington and Harbor City.

Homeless still homeless

Recently I had reason to go to the new Salvation Army building, Beach Haven Lodge, at 834 Pacific Ave. This beautiful building appears to be entirely empty and I would like to know why.

E.C., Long Beach.
Beach Haven Lodge was built by local Salvation Army entirely with legacy funds earmarked for that purpose. The building was furnished with money earned by the group's women's auxiliary. ACTION LINE was told by local Salvation Army director Maj. George Baker. It was built to serve as a refuge for temporarily homeless women and children, Baker said, and to house the Salvation Army's welfare offices. However, Baker said he was depending upon the county welfare agency sending some of its needy clients to Beach Haven and then, as in the past, partially reimbursing the Salvation Army for their lodging. With recent changes in California welfare laws, this no longer is done and at the moment there are no funds to operate Beach Haven, Baker said. "Our welfare offices are staffed there, though, and we hope to open the rest of the facility for housing purposes by September, when we may have some money from our United Fund allocation."

Practice

Will the Los Angeles Rams be practicing again in Long Beach? Are the sessions open to the public? D.M. Jr., Long Beach.

For the seventh year, the Los Angeles Rams football team will hold practice sessions at Blair Field in Recreation Park. The sessions, held from September to January, are not open to the public. The team pays the City of Long Beach $5,000 a year for the use of the facility and renovates the baseball field at its own expense at the end of the practice season. Blair Field is used for high school and college baseball games during the rest of the year.

Canady, who is a member of the American Federation of Astrologers, told ACTION LINE that "I teach all facets of astrology, not just the sun signs. Students are given a taste of the history as well as the meaning of astrology as it serves as a guideline for life. Students learn who they are, what they are and what they can do with their lives by looking to astrology." Secondhand

My daughter has some lovely clothes she has grown out of, but which are too good to throw away. Is there some sort of a store that will buy good, used children's clothing or where we can trade for clothing her size? E.C., Long Beach.

Although most used clothing stores do not buy children's garments, ACTION LINE was able to locate two that might purchase them from you. A spokesman for the Hollywood Used Clothing Store, 7836 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, said she would buy the clothes "if they are in nearly-new condition." Tot's Trade Town, 1507 N. Western Ave., Los Angeles, deals exclusively in used infants' garments and will buy only those in very good condition. ACTION LINE was unable to locate a place where you simply could trade your daughter's clothes for others.

County urged to lift herbicide ban

From Our L.A. Bureau

A team of county experts Friday recommended supervisors lift their ban on the use of the herbicide Simazin in the fire department's weed abatement program.

However, the team called for tighter controls over the use of herbicides in general and urged creation of a permanent commission to carry out this function.

In recommending renewed use of Simazin the team said "all available evidence indicates it is the least toxic and detrimental of the herbicides currently in use." Their report said there is no clear evidence the chemical can cause cancer, birth defects or mutations as claimed by several speakers at a public hearing before the board of supervisors in March.

The dispute over Simazin erupted when a number of environmentalists protested its use in weed clearance work.

Supervisors at first imposed a complete moratorium on its use but later lifted the ban for all work except weed clearance. The board then appointed the team of county department heads to hold public hearings and come up with recommendations.

During the hearings, several groups suggested the county could use welfare workers or jail inmates to pull the weeds by hand instead of using Simazin.

The team however termed this approach "impractical" saying it would increase costs on county road jobs alone from $170,000 to $2 million a year.

The team said the new commission should consist of appropriate county department heads and two public representatives. Its job would be to monitor herbicide use, impose restrictions where necessary and ensure that personnel using weed killers have proper training.

Among other proposals the team called for any aerial use of herbicides to be approved by the commission. It said individual citizens also should have the right to refuse to let the county use herbicides on their property.

Slaying suspect faces two charges of murder

A 40-year-old Wilmington wrecking yard operator will be arraigned in Municipal Court Monday on charges of murdering two men and wounding a third person he found sleeping in his truck Wednesday night.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Thomas R. Simpson issued a complaint Friday charging Thomas Preston Jr., of 22707 New Hampshire Ave., Los Angeles, with two counts of murder and one of attempted murder.

Preston, owner of a wrecking yard at 527 Lakme Ave., opened fire with a 12-gauge shotgun and a .38 caliber revolver on three transients he found in a truck which he reported stolen from his yard, police said.

Lloyd Cardwell, 40, of Springfield, Mo., and Ronald A. Williams, 47, of Agana, Guam, are dead. John B. Donahue, 44, of San Diego, remains in critical condition at Harbor General Hospital with a bullet wound in the chest.

Harbor division homicide detectives said one of the victims was asleep in the cab and the other two were in the bed of the truck when the shooting occurred.

Preston told investigators he found the truck in the 500 block of Lecouvreur Avenue, a few blocks from his wrecking yard. The suspect told police that before he opened fire he warned the three men he was armed. One of them told Preston they were also armed, according to officers.

Preston was arrested in the field with the shotgun and revolver. Police said he had emptied the pistol and fired four shotgun blasts.

The suspect had reported the truck stolen at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday. The shooting occurred at 10:30 p.m.

Officers said there was no way of knowing if the three gunshot victims had stolen the truck or "just saw it parked in the field and crawled into it to sleep."

Preston is being held without bail. He will be arraigned in Division 85 of Los Angeles Municipal Court in San Pedro.

Youth dead in truck accident

A San Pedro teenager died Friday after a pick-up truck he was driving veered off a roadway and struck a light standard.

Brad H. Peterson, 19, of 2029 Elanita Drive, ran off Gaffey Street near Channel Street at 6:50 a.m. as he was driving behind another vehicle driven by his father.

Norman Peterson said he heard a crash, looked in the rear view mirror and saw his son lying on the ground near the truck.

Peterson took his son to San Pedro Peninsula Hospital, where he died about 12 hours after the accident, officials there said.

The elder Peterson said his son may have dozed off at the wheel.

AFTER THE CONVENTION, two non-delegates kiss in the sunlight of Flamingo Park Friday, but planned to return in August during the Republican National Convention.

Plans discussed for GOP convention

Protesters warn they'll return

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Protest groups broke camp at Flamingo Park Friday, but planned to return in August during the Republican National Convention.

"While many black volunteers were dismantling 'Resurrection City II,' about 60 white youths attended a meeting at the Jewish Cultural Center to plan next month's demonstrations."

Stew Albert, blond-bearded leader of the Zipie faction of the Youth International Party, called for massive civil disturbances during the GOP convention.

"Everyone understands this has been a dress rehearsal and they were supposed to go home and bring back their whole communities," he said. "Miami Beach is not very big. If you filled it up with enough CD (civil disobedience), nothing could move."

BUT POET Alan Ginsburg urged restraint.

"If there's going to be a negative confrontation, young people and old people won't come," he said. "It would be more meaningful to have a ring of silent people — young and old — circling the convention hall as Richard Nixon gives his acceptance speech."

He said he felt that aggressive demonstrators would prompt backlash.

"I wouldn't try it and I wouldn't use that rhetoric," he said. "We tried the confrontation scene in Chicago and it just didn't work. I think the left is to blame for Richard Nixon being in the White House and the continuation of the war."

"I'm not saying Humphrey would have ended it, but there was the possibility and we blew it in Chicago."

equipment, leave the area where protest groups had gathered during the Democratic National Convention, which ended Friday.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Zipies, Yuppies, Gay Power, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War and other organizations also discussed plans to leave behind a "task force" to organize security patrols, medical care and transportation for demonstrators at the GOP get-together.

"There is no guarantee at all that we will be able to get back into Flamingo Park," Albert said.

The Miami Beach City Council, in a close vote shortly before the convention, agreed to let the protesters camp free in Flamingo Park during the Democratic sessions. No decision was reached on what will be done in August.

One unidentified youth said at the planning meeting that a violent demonstration would "play into Richard Nixon's hands."

"We've got to show him he's wrong and show them by example," he said. "We've got to show we want the best things for people and with violence we will be crushed."

The indictment said Camil taught VVAW members, including Patterson and Mahoney, how to use firebombs during a planning session at his home in Gainesville May 27. The second count of the indictment charged Camil with possessing a firebomb made of potassium permanganate.

The third count in the indictment accused Camil and the others of conspiring "on or about April 1" to violently disrupt the Republican convention.

Four other VVAW members were jailed Thursday night on orders of U.S. District Judge David L. Middlebrooks for contempt after they refused to testify before the grand jury.

Veterans indicted in plot to sabotage GOP meeting

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Six members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW) were indicted by a federal grand jury Friday on charges of conspiring to cause riots during the Republican national convention with firebombs, automatic weapons and slingshot-propelled fireworks.

Scott Camil of Gainesville, the Florida chairman of VVAW, was among the six indicted on the conspiracy charge. He was also indicted on one count of manufacturing and possessing a firebomb and one count of instructing others in how to use explosives.

The six indicted on conspiracy charges were Camil, John W. Kniffen of Austin, Tex., William J. Patterson of El Paso, Tex., Peter P. Mahoney of New York, Alton C. Foss of Hialeah, Fla., and Donald P. Perdue of Gainesville, Fla.

If convicted on all three counts, Camil could be sent to prison for 20 years and fined $20,000. The other five, indicted only on the conspiracy charge, could receive a maximum of five years and a $10,000 fine.

U.S. Attorney William Stafford said Camil, Kniffen and Mahoney were being held under $25,000 bond at the Leon County Jail, and that Foss was taken into custody by a U.S. marshal in Miami. He said Patterson and Perdue were not yet in custody.

The indictment said, "it was the part of the said conspiracy that the defendants and the individual co-conspirators would organize numerous 'fire teams' to attack with automatic weapons fire and incendiary devices police stations, police cars, and stores in Miami Beach, Fla., on various dates between Aug. 21 and 24, 1972."

The dates of the Republican convention.

It listed 15 "overt acts" by various defendants, claiming that the out-of-state VVAW members crossed state borders to take part in a conspiracy. The indictment said the antiwar veterans plotted to arm themselves with "wrist rocket" slingshots that would fire "lead weights, 'fried' marbles, ball bearing, 'cherry' bombs, and smoke bombs at police . . ."

It also said Camil stocked up on the "wrist rocket" slingshots in preparation for the convention.

The grand jury last Monday subpoenaed 23 VVAW activists to appear in Tallahassee and testify on then-undisclosed matters.

Throughout the week of secrecy, the VVAW members maintained that the government was only trying to keep them away from the Democratic national convention in Miami Beach.

Miami matures Calif. novices

Green delegates ripened

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — California's youth-oriented delegation headed home Friday still idealistically aiming for "the new politics" but with far more respect for the old.

"I see now why they do a lot of things I always griped about before," said Judy Streeter, 21, of Sacramento, whose one word description of the grueling four-day Democratic convention was "fantastic."

Most of the 271 California delegates, 90 per cent of whom had never before been to a national convention; 36 per cent of whom were under age 30, and 40 per cent of whom were blacks, Chicanos or other minorities, boarded two charter jets Friday to fly to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

It generally is agreed among the Democratic hierarchy that never again will a state be represented by a winner-take-all delegation such as California's.

Opponents of the winner-take-all system, including most George McGovern supporters, regard it as unfair and in violation of the one-man, one-vote principle.

The consensus among California's political novices, drawn to the party by the ideals of McGovern, was that they did not particularly like all the political shenanigans on the convention floor but went along with them as necessary to nominate their candidate.

"Maybe there was a bit of old politics mixed in with the new, but it had to be that way," said Lorraine Alvarez, 21, of El Monte.

"I'm a political science major," noted Laura Gonzales, 21, of the University of California at San Diego, "and in just four days here I learned more than I ever have studying. I learned very quickly how to cope with political power and play the chess game."

"You have to anticipate their every move and have a counter move ready."

Besides the credentials fight over seating of the California delegation — won dramatically by the McGovern forces — California's contingent played a major role in two big floor battles and was prepared to in a third.

California's leaders, at the urging of McGovern strategists, helped beat back the proposed seating of nine South Carolina women.

If the women had won, for parliamentary reasons, it could have jeopardized the California fight yet to come. The Californians also helped defeat a pro-abortion platform plank McGovern felt would be potentially embarrassing.

In both cases, California would have overwhelming-ly backed the other side if it had not been so loyal to McGovern.

There was a breaking in the ranks when it came to voting for a vice president. Only 198 of the 271 Californians voted for McGovern's choice, Sen. Thomas Eagleton. Many delegates were upset because McGovern did not allow the convention to select the running mate without a recommendation from the presidential nominee.

"Knowing the McGovern delegates," said actress Shirley MacLaine, "my God, we would have been here until December."

Delegation co-chairman Willie Brown and John Burton aggressively lobbied delegates to switch their votes to Eagleton and 29 did. But it was not announced because by then Eagleton had enough votes from other states to put him over the top.

"I don't like the idea of it," said Tanya Neil, 19, of Los Gatos, referring to all the political jockeying, "but on the other hand, I don't know all the issues on these political things. You've got to trust your leaders."

WHAT SHE heard, and read aloud, was that Mao Tse-Tung had received seven of Colorado's votes. What had been reported to her by the delegation head was seven votes for Mondragon (Robert, lieutenant governor of New Mexico).

This perked up some ears, but of course it didn't really matter.

The war-protesting Berri-gan brothers, Daniel and Philip, drew a vote apiece, and so did activists Jerry Rubin and Dr. Benjamin Spock. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader got one, and CBS newsmen Roger Mudd won two.

Delegates totaling 43.5 votes wanted no part of the proceedings, serious of factious, and abstained. Another five were recorded as absent.

"My choice as vice president," McGovern told the convention after reviewing the results, "was challenged by only 39 other nominees."

It was Mondragon, not Mao, for VP

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — It had been a pretty serious convention — so when it came time for the vice presidential voting, some of the delegates got the whimsy out of their systems.

Martha Mitchell, whose credentials read Republican, got five-sixths of a vote.

Archie Bunker, the bigoted figure of TV's imagination, drew the support of some delegate or other from South Carolina.

But Chairman Mao did not get seven votes from the Colorado delegation, even if the official record did read that way.

THESE and other names like Spock and Berrigan and Nader and Rubin and Mudd were nominated during the roll call early Friday evening although the Democratic National Convention endorsed by acclamation Sen. George S. McGovern's choice of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton to be his running mate.

McGovern joined in the fun at the start of his acceptance speech, telling the folks from Oregon that his wife Eleanor "is very grateful" for the vice presidential vote she got from one of their number.

"It kept her in the race with Martha Mitchell," he said.

The Colorado confusion developed because of difficulty in communications between the noisy convention floor and Mrs. Dorothy V. Bush, the party's secretary and caller of the roll at this her eighth convention.

UFW says Kennedy plug helped boycott

FRESNO, (UPI) — When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy hailed delegates to the Democratic National Convention as "fellow lettuce boycotters," it gave a big boost to the Cesar Chavez-led boycott against non-union head lettuce, a United Farm Workers Union official said Friday.

However, an Associated Press survey of supermarket chains across the country indicated the boycott thus far is having little effect.

"When we plan a boycott, we plan for a couple of years," said Marshall Ganz, director of the farm workers international boycott program.

"The success of the boycott depends on reaching many, many Americans and convincing them not to eat lettuce" (that doesn't bear the UFW label), Ganz added. "Something like this is tremendously helpful," he continued, referring to Kennedy's salute.

KENNEDY, who introduced Sen. George McGovern when he made his acceptance speech at the convention early Friday, echoed sentiments expressed by members of numerous state delegations, including California, New York, Illinois, Tennessee, Rhode Island and Oregon. McGovern also has come out in support of the boycott.

"We're very pleased with it," said Ganz. "Most of the delegations and many of the democratic state conventions endorsed the boycott and urged people not to buy lettuce."

"The Democratic party is the largest political organization in the United States," he added, "and having that kind of support and the fact that it's endorsed right in the platform is very helpful. We're waiting to see what the Republicans are going to do."

The boycott extends to all lettuce which does not carry the UFW's stamp. Ganz said. About 15 per cent of the total lettuce crop in California and Arizona is harvested by growers which have contracts with the UFW, he added.

A screening clinic to deal with the UFW, he added. However, many other growers have contracts with the Teamsters, which has led to a jurisdictional dispute between the two unions.

GANZ SAID the current campaign is directed primarily at the general public, asking people to sign a pledge not to buy non-UFW lettuce. Each pledge that is signed, he added, costs a grower about $15 a year in lost sales.

In Los Angeles, only one major chain carries UFW lettuce exclusively, and it asked not to be identified. Others in the area carry both union and nonunion lettuce.

In Dallas, a spokesman for a large wholesale produce firm said both union and nonunion lettuce were carried and none of the supermarkets refused to buy nonunion lettuce. Most of those who refuse to buy non-UFW lettuce in the north Texas area, the spokesman said, are Mexican-American housewives.

Robert Antle, president of Bud Antle, Inc., one of the nation's two largest growers of lettuce, said in Salinas, that the firm's field workers have been represented by the Teamsters for 11 years and have wages and benefits "equivalent to if not greater than like benefits paid in many industrial organizations."

HE SAID he was certain the sentiments expressed at Miami Beach were not intended for lettuce grown by Antle "or . . . by many other companies whose lettuce workers are represented by valid collective bargaining agreements, either with bona fide labor organizations such as the Teamsters Union or the United Farm Workers."

"A boycott of our lettuce, if successful, would only result in the reduction of work available for these Teamster and AFL-CIO workers and would cause hardship to the very people the so-called 'lettuce boycotters' would purport to help," Antle said. He added that he believed "no responsible Democrat would truly seek to obtain power at the expense of the livelihood of unionized farm workers."

Bob Dresselhaus, executive secretary of the San Diego County Farm Bureau, predicted the boycott publicity would harm the Democratic party. "It didn't do the Democratic party any good," he said, "and it's going to antagonize a lot of the growers."

In Arizona, Chavez and the farm workers union are attempting to have Republican Gov. Jack Williams recalled over a law, which goes into effect in the middle of August, that prohibits secondary boycotts during the growing season. However, Leroy Bridges, executive director of the State Farm Bureau, said the boycott would help lettuce sales.

"The people are tired of demonstrations and boycotts," he said. "We just finished a grape harvest and some people in the markets back east asked for nonunion grapes. I believe people will buy more lettuce than they would have otherwise."

Emil Ghio Jr., president of Golden West Packing Co., in Chula Vista, said the convention emphasized the lettuce boycott "for one reason — all the Chavez people on the delegations."

Ghio quit growing lettuce last year on the 800 acres he farms south of San Diego. He echoed Dresselhaus' prediction that the publicity would harm the party, saying, "I don't think there are going to be many growers who are going to vote the Democratic ticket this year, unless things change."

In New York City, a spokesman for the Municipal Services Administration said Mayor John V. Lindsay had issued a directive against purchase of nonunion lettuce. "We buy western lettuce with the Chavez stamp and we buy eastern lettuce, but we do not buy nonunion lettuce," he said.

New York City buys 611,000 pounds of lettuce annually at a cost of $105,000 to supply 40 hospitals, correctional institutions and other facilities, the spokesman added. This does not include purchases for schools, but the Board of Education follows the same union-only policy.

McGovern's star shines dim on world horizon

By FLORA LEWIS
New York Times Service

PARIS — To most of the world, Sen. George McGovern popped out of the Democratic convention like a jack-in-the-box, a disconcerting but not too important surprise.

President Nixon's broad travels and his recurrent headline sensations have fixed him as an American landmark in the view from abroad. It is generally taken for granted that he will remain and that McGovern therefore does not matter much.

A survey by New York Times correspondents in 11 key countries showed that, at this stage, McGovern's cloud appears no bigger than a man's hand, whether it is seen as darkly menacing or rosy with hope.

The American political process is bewildering to most abroad. A great many people would echo the idea of an Iranian who said, "the whole world should be able to vote for the American president because what he does affects the whole world." And while Washington is not exactly the global capital that it seemed a decade ago, virtually every country feels it has a large stake in what is decided there.

BUT IT IS only the political elites that have been following the 1972 campaign, and few among them have noticed the shifting undercurrents and shattered habits that produced McGovern's nomination.

To many, McGovern is a mysterious aberration, one of those inexplicable American phenomena like Chicago in 1968 or the World Series. They appear to erupt once in a while and then subside as suddenly, leaving the familiar surface scarcely changed. In a few countries, though, the correspondents reported keen interest in the transformation of an unknown U.S. senator into a major party presidential candidate in what seems a matter of weeks.

In Britain, for example, despite discomfiture with what an official called McGovern's "terribly trendy ideas," there was general admiration for the way the American system could produce a new face on the national, and possibly international, scene in so short a time.

"The way things work here," a source in London said, "allows new blood in politics to rise very, very slowly. Prime ministers do not spring out of the blue, but out of long, tedious procedures. It's acknowledged that the American way has some advantages."

In Japan, where politics is a stately procession of masculine seniority, intellectuals were impressed by the composition of the Democratic convention.

"I really was surprised," said one Japanese foreign affairs expert, "when I read that 80 per cent of the delegates were participating in a national convention for the first time, and that young people and women were prominent among the delegates."

In West Germany, where people feel a special dependence on American politics and take special efforts to watch its convolutions, every major party was planning to send observers to follow the U.S. campaign.

The observers will be instructed to pick up any campaign techniques which might be adaptable for use back home.

But politicians almost everywhere — in London, Tokyo and Bonn, and in Moscow, Warsaw, Paris, Rome, Brussels, Belgrade and other capitals — emphasized that their expectation of a Nixon victory was a wish as well as a thought. To conservatives, socialists and communists alike, Nixon has the virtue of a known quantity.

Western Europeans stress above all their fear that McGovern would lead America into a new era of isolationism, possibly including the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Europe.

The Soviet Union displays a revealingly ambiguous attitude. They like McGovern's stand on Vietnam, defense budget cuts and foreign base shut-downs.

FAA asks better arms detection

Hand baggage search urged
By VERN BAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has asked the airlines for new measures to prevent weapons from being brought aboard airplanes in carry-on luggage. And several airlines have taken some steps to do so.

Citing the alarming number of hijackings carried out with arms or explosives concealed in hand-carried luggage, FAA Administrator John H. Shaffer asked the airlines to consider a "voluntary program to bring about a very significant reduction in such baggage."

"If a passenger insists on carrying baggage into the cabin, it should be searched," Shaffer said in a letter to Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association.

"IN ORDER to insure the integrity of a search, the carry-on baggage should be sealed and the unbroken seal shown to the cabin attendant during the boarding process."

Shaffer added that if the airlines feature baggage storage in the passenger cabin, the storage bins might be locked at the point of departure, and the keys to the bins left on the ground at that station. Thus the bins could be unlocked only by the ground service agent at the point of arrival.

"We fully realize the inconvenience to the passenger, from facilitative and work-habit aspects. In carrying material into the cabin," Shaffer said.

"However, we further realize that carry-on baggage has been a very prominent aid to the hijacker and criminal extortionist," he added.

Shaffer said that from July 1, 1969, through June 2, 1972, there were 85 hijackings, of which 15 occurred under circumstances not related to pre-boarding screening.

OF THE 80 remaining instances, 28 have been definitely identified as resulting from weapons brought aboard in, or alleged to have been contained in, carry-on baggage.

Shaffer said the FAA would prefer to avoid making a new rule in this regard.

"But we urge that the carriers promptly examine this problem and adopt a system as soon as possible whereby we can eliminate carry-on baggage as a tool to the hijacker or extortionist," he said.

Tipton, in reply, said he agrees in principle with Shaffer's proposal and would see that the matter has priority on the agenda of forthcoming airline conferences.

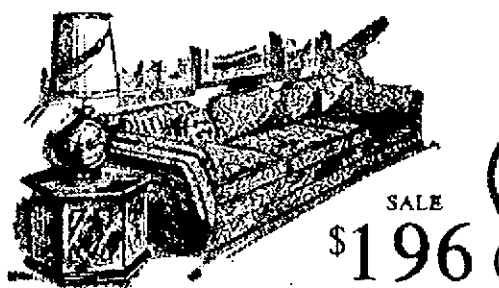

Tipton pointed out that his association's newly formed working group of airline baggage and security officers held its first meeting here this week, shortly after receipt of Shaffer's proposal, and already has the matter under consideration.

AN AIRLINE industry official who declined use of his name said quick action to restrict carry-on baggage could be expected.

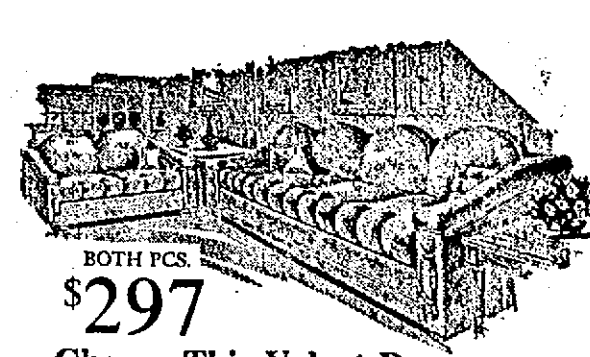

"The typical businessman likes to carry his attaché case on the plane, and that seriously slows up the boarding process under the new inspection rules for shuttle flights," he said.

"You can expect some new ruling soon."

United Air Lines, the nation's largest carrier, said Thursday it would employ personnel to inspect luggage by persons boarding its 727 flights and making its policy of continuing spot

American said it is inspecting all baggage at boarding gates for 727 flights and broadening hand-luggage inspection on other flights.

"The 727 has been a particular target of hijackers because of its rear door which can be, and has been, used for parachute escapes by extortionists."

EASTERN Airlines is inspecting all such luggage on its Boston-New York-Washington shuttle flights in accordance with President Nixon's instructions of last Friday. But the airlines said it is not currently planning to conduct similar inspections on its system generally.

"We have magnetometers at all our gates, whereas other airlines do not, yet," an Eastern spokesman said.

"Furthermore, we have great faith in the use of the hijacker profile on our regular flights, although we cannot use it effectively on shuttle flights."

In the first six months of 1972, he said, 480 passengers were detected by Eastern through the profile application and then identified as carrying narcotics or concealed weapons, or as being fugitives from justice or military personnel about without official leave.

TRANS WORLD Airlines said that although it has used security measures all along beyond those required by the FAA, it introduced new restrictions one week ago and still further precautions Thursday. He said these measures could not be identified.

"We have 100 per cent inspection of hand luggage on international flights and up to 100 per cent in some cases on domestic flights," the TWA spokesman said.

"We use magnetometers at all locations and inspect baggage to the maximum degree possible," the TWA spokesman said. He agreed that TWA's 727s and DC9s get special attention.

Airline to search hand bags

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — In the future, all carry-on luggage of passengers boarding American Airlines flights will be checked, the airline announced Friday.

American Airlines ordered the searches after the hijacking of a plane near Oklahoma City Wednesday night. The hijacker surrendered after eight hours.

At Oklahoma City, an airline spokesman said the order specifically applies to Boeing 727s, the type hijacked Wednesday. But since most of the flights in Oklahoma use this type of three-jet plane, the order was expanded to cover all flights.

In Chicago, an American spokesman said the luggage inspection would not be limited to passengers boarding the 727s.

Texas holds GI for Calif. in double slaying

LAKE STILHOUSE, Tex. (UPI) — A deputy sheriff looking into reports of gunshots in a quiet rural area of central Texas Friday arrested an AWOL soldier wanted in California for the murder of his wife and child.

Bell County Deputy Larry Springer investigated the mysterious gunshots and apprehended Paul G. Carlson, 21, of Marina, Calif. A routine check revealed Carlson was wanted and he was detained in the county jail for California authorities.

Springer said he found what he believed to be marijuana in Carlson's possession.

Regents won't fund center

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of California Regents Friday turned down a proposal to support a "public interest research center" on the Berkeley campus by raising student fees.

The project, recommended by University President Charles J. Hitch, was to be financed by an increase of $1.50 per quarter in student fees on the campus.

The purpose of the center was to "conduct and pursue research and to collect, compile and publish facts and information concerning the environment, consumer affairs, health care and similar matters."

The regents turned down the increase in associated students fees on grounds that it would be unfair to burden all students with the cost of such a project.

HITCH'S recommendation had included a provision that students who did not want to contribute the $1.50 could get it back by seeking a refund within two weeks after the fee was paid.

Several regents argued that this method was not exactly a "voluntary" system for getting the students' money.

The regents earlier had discussed the aims of the center and indicated they would not allow such a unit on the campus if its aims included environmental and consumer legal actions. The project was set up chiefly by law students.

Hitch said the present proposal had been modified to restrict its activities to research and reports.

THE REGENTS, at their regular meeting, approved the use of student fees to back construction bonds for the university's building program.

Pennies For Taxes

June Herndon, San Jose IRS clerk, counts $2,500 worth of back taxes paid in pennies by Larry Hermone. Hermone owed the government $4,000 in back taxes originally. After paying off $1,500, he asked if he could pay the rest in monthly installments. The IRS refused and threatened to put a lien on his property. Hermone then scraped up 250,000 pennies, weighing one ton, and delivered them to the IRS office.

Abby counterpart gives advice to 10-year-old set

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — "Confused" of Camden, N.J., had a problem. A 10-year-old, she had a crush on a 12-year-old boy at her school.

"But he never looks at me," she wrote. "He is cute. Should I wear low pants and short skirts like my older sister? Will he notice me? Please help."

The call for help went to Angel Marie Cavaliere, a 10-year-old Philadelphia girl who writes "Dear Angel," an advice column which appears three times a week in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

In it, Angel tries to solve the problems of pre-teenagers who have to suffer through love affairs, fights with parents, and older sisters who hog the bathroom.

ANGEL broke into print last June after she wrote a letter to the editor of the Bulletin which began, "Please may I have a job? I would like to write a column like 'Dear Abby' only for smaller problems. I am in the fifth grade. I am 10 years old... and I like to help people with their problems."

"No one has stumped me yet," Angel said. "It's been beautiful so far. I like helping kids with problems."

"She's a very sharp girl, a real little pro," said Paul Murphy, Angel's editor at the Bulletin. "The mail's been pretty fantastic. She's had about 1,200 letters since she started in June."

Angel handles all the mail herself, writes her answer in long hand, then peeks out the reply on a small typewriter at her home.

"At first I was kind of surprised, I didn't think it was going to be this big. I got my picture in the paper and all," she said. "I work hard but I still have my play time. My mom doesn't want me to change that and I won't."

ANGEL told "Confused" that 10 years old is a little bit young to fall in love. She told a "long hair girl," who complained that boys pulled her hair, to get a haircut, and urged "Carol of Wilmington, Del." not to hit her girl friend's doll anymore.

"Nobody's allowed to help me, that's in the contract," Angel said.

The contract with the Bulletin also calls for a weekly salary, which Angel is putting in a savings account to help pay for college.

What does she want to do when she gets out of school?

"I want to continue being a columnist," Angel said.

Court tells libbers to use husband's surnames

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — Arlington Circuit Court Judge William Winston ruled Friday that two young housewives must use their husbands' surnames.

Ms. Kathryn Scott, whose husband's name is Packwood, and Ms. Barbara Aiello, whose husband's name is Osterman, contend that they should not "be forced to give up" the name they were born with.

Ms. Scott said she never has, and does not intend to use the name Packwood. Ms. Aiello, who used her husband's name since their marriage in 1968, said she is in the process of changing her identification cards and legal documents.

Winston ruled that Virginia law specifically provides that a married woman can resume using her maiden name only after divorce and, a number of laws, such as those governing voting, have provisions requiring a woman's married name.

Model A owners get together

SEATTLE — Those who remember only the cold winter night when their Model A Ford had a flat tire in the middle of nowhere should have been here when the enthusiasts came to town.

Recapturing the look of 40 years ago, more than 300 showroom fresh antique Model A's were in Seattle Friday for the seventh National Convention and Auto Show of the Model A Ford Club of America.

The Model A Club, which has more than 10,000 members, put their cars on display Friday and Saturday,

U.S. child expert quits with swipe at programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contending the government has done little "to bring about a mixture of children from various socio-economic strata," the administration's top expert on children, Edward F. Zigler, has resigned, it was announced Friday.

"The lack of coordination of federal child development programs with each other and with state and local efforts is a serious problem for which answers have proved elusive," Zigler wrote in a June 30 letter of resignation to President Nixon.

"Very little has been done in our programs to bring about a mixture of children from various socio-economic strata," Zigler said.

"So long as there are poor children who remain unserved, it is appropriate to direct our efforts to them. However, the idea that children of all social groups should share early experiences has become widely accepted, and I look forward to the achievement of this goal as funds and manpower become available."

Zigler said he resigned because he fulfilled a two-year commitment made in June 1970 after he was appointed by President Nixon to be chief of the Children's Bureau and director of the Office of Child Development. The office, a new agency in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, includes Head Start for preschool children, day care and other government service programs.

"I am also very concerned that thousands of children today receive the kind of day care which does not enhance a child's development and which in many instances may be seriously harmful," Zigler said.

"Much of this care is subsidized by the federal government." He did not further explain what he meant by poor quality day care.

In announcing the resignation, HEW said Zigler's letter was not released until Friday so that Richardson could reply.

Richardson told Zigler: "you have fulfilled your commitment to this department and to America's children with great distinction."

Zigler's resignation came on the heels of a recent shakeup in which Head Start was dropped one notch and its project director, Richard E. Orton, reassigned to Texas. A HEW spokesman denied that the moves were related.

Zigler was in Kansas City, Mo., his home town, attending his father's funeral, and could not be reached for comment. Before joining the administration, he was a professor of psychology and director of Yale's child development program. He will return to Yale.

Saul Rosoff, deputy director of child development, will become acting director of the agency and Zigler will be a special consultant to the department, HEW said.

Mariner 9 completes job of photo-mapping entire Mars

PASADENA (AP) — Mariner 9, America's instrument-laden spacecraft orbiting Mars, has completed photo-mapping the entire Martian surface — a milestone in man's exploration of the solar system.

Meanwhile, the spacecraft which has been streaking toward the huge planet Jupiter, Pioneer 10, plunges into the asteroid belt Saturday.

Spokesmen at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here said Friday that "final elements needed for a global map" have been transmitted back to earth from Mariner 9's television cameras.

For the first time, man now has a complete photo map of another planet. The map, involving more than 7,100 photographs, has a "resolution" of about 3,000 feet. That means objects smaller than that generally aren't visible.

However, more detailed pictures with much better resolution have been taken of portions of the planet with a telephoto camera.

Reception of the final mapping pictures Monday, the JPL spokesman said, marks the end of photo transmissions until October. The Mariner 9 cameras will take brief photo sequences in August, September and twice in early October, but they'll all be recorded on magnetic tape aboard the spacecraft and played back to earth in mid-October.

Scientists hope during these brief sequences to get another look at Mars' north polar cap, cloud formations and favored sites for an unmanned lander in 1976.

During coming weeks, tracking data will continue to be received by JPL scientists to test the relativity theory of the late physicist Albert Einstein.

On Sept. 7, Mars and Earth will be on opposite sides of the sun. To test the relativity theory, the experts will try to determine if the sun's gravitational field distorts Mariner 9's radio signals, as Einstein predicted it should.

Similar tests with prior Mariner spacecraft gave confirming data. Pioneer 10, since it left the orbit of Mars last month, has been streaking through unexplored space on its way to Jupiter, which it is expected to reach late in 1973.

Pioneer project officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center, Mountain View, Calif., said it will take about seven months for the spacecraft to pass through the asteroid belt.

The belt contains millions of asteroids ranging in size from dust particles and sand pebbles to rock chunks as big as Alaska, orbiting the sun at velocities of about 12 miles a second.

They expect the craft to survive the trip without serious damage from asteroid impact. It carries three experiments to measure the particle brightness, speed, direction of travel, density and total light reflection of asteroidal material.

Pioneer 10 was launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., last March 2, and will become, after its 620-million-mile flight path to Jupiter, the first man-made object to escape the solar system.

More Einstein proof possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two scientists who reported months ago that atomic clocks had finally confirmed Albert Einstein's theory that time is relative said Friday such super-accurate clocks look like good bets for testing other aspects of the theory of relativity.

Clocks might be developed that could test Einstein's theory that gravity can affect the passage of time for a flying object, they said.

Physicist Joseph C. Hafele of Washington University in St. Louis and astronomer Richard Keating of the U.S. Naval Observatory made the suggestion in their first formal report on results of a unique experiment they conducted last October.

AT THAT time, they twice hauled four atomic clocks around the world in 80-hour flights to test Einstein's theory that the time a clock measures depends upon its speed relative to the earth, the stars and all other objects in the universe.

The theory holds that time travels more slowly for a rapidly moving object than for a stationary one such as the stay-at-home atomic clock with which the airborne clocks were compared.

A classic, theoretical example of this so-called "clock paradox" concept is that of twin brothers, aged 20.

One, an astronaut, takes a 32-year space voyage at close to the speed of light, but by earth standards ages only 4½ years in that time. His stay-at-home brother is 52 years old when the astronaut returns to earth.

In an interview with The Associated Press last February, Keating said the global flights — one eastward, the other westward — had demonstrated that Einstein was right on target.

IN TWO lengthy articles Friday in the technical journal, Science, the scientists reiterated their claim, giving figures essentially the same as those ticked off by Keating to a newsmen several months previously when he was still making delicate analyses.

They said that, thanks to the findings of the gad-about atomic clocks, "there seems to be little basis for further arguments" against the clock paradox theory.

"In fact," they said, "the experiments were so successful that it is not unrealistic to consider improved versions of atomic clocks designed to investigate other aspects of the general relativity theory."

2 scientist astronauts quit corps

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Scientist Astronauts Drs. Philip K. Chapman and Anthony W. England Friday announced their resignations from the Astronaut Corps, a Manned Spacecraft Center spokesman said.

Chapman of Melbourne, Australia, has accepted a job as principal research scientist with Avco Everett Research Laboratory in Everett, Mass., the spokesman said. He also will work as a senior research associate in the measurement systems laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

England of Fargo, N.D., has accepted a position with the Regional Geophysics Group in the U.S. Geological Survey's Denver office and will assist in developing techniques using radar from airplanes and spacecraft to study the surface and subsurface structures of the earth and planets.

England also will continue as a coinvestigator for the electrical surface properties experiment which will be conducted on the lunar surface during Apollo 17, the spokesman said.

Chapman's resignation is effective immediately and England's resignation is effective Aug. 14.

Both men were selected for the astronaut program in 1967. Neither has ever flown a space mission.

Rodneys, true joy, long hair, farmer priest, witchcraft

By MARK CLUTTER

Well, the Rodneys are gone again, this time for a leisurely month in Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland.

In the last three years they have visited England, Yugoslavia, Hawaii, the Kingdom of Tonga and New Zealand. And Les also visited Israel.

"We want to see as much of this beautiful world as we can while we are young enough to enjoy it," Les said. With that kind of zest they will probably go on their last journey at the age of 98.

"THE GREATEST libel against God is the notion that He likes to see men express obeisance to Him through somber, long-faced, mirthless piety," comments Louis Cassels, the UPI religion writer.

That mirthless piety is also a major reason why so many are alienated from the churches.

There are, however, believers who radiate joy not of this world. You know them when you meet them. They don't have to say or do anything to make people happier. Just their presence is enough.

They are seldom addicted to pleasures, and they may lack the high spirits of good physical health. But they have inner strength which seems to be a blend of courage and love.

WHAT IS morality? Almost everyone thinks he knows, but moral reactions may be startling, even alarming. Quoting Cassels again: "The largest volume of hate mail I've received in years was provoked by what I thought was an offhand, obvious statement: No moral issue is involved in the current vogue of men wearing their hair long."

Most of the angry ones quoted St. Paul, who spoke out against long-haired males. He also said that women should have their heads covered in church.

"None of my correspondents was prepared to accept the possibility that Paul was merely expressing his own personal prejudices, conditioned by the Greek culture in which he lived," Cassels said.

MISSIONARIES do more than teach hymns and prayers to foreigners. For example, Columbian Father Patrick McGlinchey recently received a major award from President Park Chung-hee of South Korea for work in farming. Father McGlinchey started a pig farm with one sow on a war-devastated island in 1954.

Today the farm cooperative markets 15,000 hogs a year, gives well-paid work to 250 farmers and is a training center for people from many parts of Asia. Columbian Sisters operate a health clinic. The priest is planning a cattle-raising industry which began with finding a grass that would grow on semi-barren land. He is importing 325 purebred New Zealand cattle.

THE LUTHERAN Church in America in its recent convention in Dallas called for voluntary population controls to "avoid the ghastly alternatives of famine and disease, crime and violence and war."

It warned that the danger of population growth will bring pressures for compulsory controls.

The Lutherans called for development of ecological life styles which are sensitive to the needs of human beings and the nonhuman world.

"BARBARA, the Gray Witch," who runs a witchcraft store in San Bernardino, was infuriated by the "Witchmobile" that was displayed at the National Orange Show there. The exhibit was prepared by Morris Cerullo World Evangelism. She said it dealt only with the "black realm" and did not show "white (good) witchcraft" or "gray witchcraft."

Evangelist Cerullo reported that there is no "white" witchcraft and that the Bible condemns all such practices. "We are not witch-hunters," he said. "We don't want to burn anyone at the stake. But we do want to point out the many dangers associated not only with witchcraft but with other occult practices as well. These practices can and have led to violence, murder, suicide and mental derangement."

What is happening to our civilization? For 500 years or more the West European peoples struggled to free themselves from the bondage of superstition. They envisioned an era of scientific and religious enlightenment.

But in recent years the old dark fantasies seem to be returning. Bookstore shelves are laden with volumes on all the forms of witchcraft, and such notions. Is this merely a fad reflecting the emotional muddle of our times? Or is it possible that many people cannot stand much light, much reason?

Comments from readers should prove interesting and worthwhile.

Carroll denounces cold sins of Reno

"What is it like to be a clergyman in a sin city?"

The Rev. James E. Carroll, who recently completed a pastorate of six years at Trinity Episcopal in Reno, answered sternly:

"Gambling is not the sin of Reno. The chief sin there is a rigid, tight-fisted, intolerant arch-conservatism. I'm not speaking of Episcopalians alone. It runs through the whole society. The Roman Catholics, the Mormons and the Protestant churches all make the same complaint. A pastor of 14 years recently preached a farewell sermon in which he denounced Reno for this sin. He didn't leave town a popular man."

"Now don't misunderstand me. We were happy in Reno and we have many friends there. There are true saints in Trinity. But the prevailing cold inflexibility makes everything very difficult."

"Reno is really two societies — the casinos and the town. Gambling and the attendant vices are rather mild. There is no 'mafia' or anything like that."

Father Carroll, who was rector of All Saints from 1959 to 1966, visited here over the weekend and was celebrant and preacher at All Saints last Sunday. He is vacationing with his wife and sons, John, 12, Mark, 1, and Paul, 3, on a leisurely trip through the Southwest en route to his new assignment as dean of St. James Cathedral, Chicago.

After six years Father Carroll was able to call everyone by his first name. The only exceptions were some teenagers. Kids change a lot in six years.

The Chicago post will be quite a contrast to both Reno and Long Beach. A dean in an Episcopal cathedral is both a diocesan official and the parish priest. St. James can seat 1,000 but seldom does. It is located in downtown Chicago and is deeply involved with the typical social problems of the inner city.

For example, St. James has a pastor for night people. He works from 10 p.m. until 4 a.m., serving in many ways in the often tragic situations of the small hours.

The Rev. Donald R. Behm, rector of All Saints, was a seminary classmate of Father Carroll.

WHAT KIND OF CHRISTIAN ARE YOU?

20 questions of conscience

By MARK CLUTTER

Here is an opportunity to examine some of your ideas about the Christian religion and to learn some of the ideas of other Christians.

This quiz makes no pretense of being a scientific survey. It is merely an exchange of ideas. You might say it is just for fun. But the ideas are highly important.

Answer each statement "True" or "False." If you wish, you may make comments on a separate piece of paper. We hope you will.

You may sign your name, but it is not necessary. The questionnaire is slanted toward Christians but may be answered by persons of other faiths or agnostics. Some of the ideas are of concern to all thoughtful persons.

The results and as many comments as possible will be published two weeks from today.

Send your questionnaire and comments this week to

Episcopalians nominate five for post being vacated by Bishop Bloy

A successor to the Rt. Rev. Francis Eric Bloy, Episcopal bishop of Los Angeles, will be elected by the Diocesan Convention next October.

A slate of five nominees has been presented by a nominating committee headed by the Rev. Harold G. Hultgren of Alhambra. Seventy-two men were screened for the post. Other nominations may be made from the floor.

The nominees are the Rev. Canon Kenneth W. Carey, St. Matthew's, Pacific Palisades; the Very Rev. J. Ogden Hoffman Jr., dean, Trinity Cathedral, Sacramento; the

The bishop-elect must receive a majority vote of both lay and clergy delegates. He then must receive the consent of a majority of bishops and standing committees of the dioceses of the Episcopal Church.

FRIENDS SPEAK HARSHLY

Quakers say Viet war means spiritual defeat

By LES RODNEY

One of the harshest critiques of American policy in Vietnam by any church group is contained in a new "White Paper" issued by the American Friends Service Committee. It is entitled "Indochina 1972: Perpetual War."

With uncharacteristic vehemence for the gentle people of the inner light, the Friends say: "Our personal familiarity with the victims of war, and our constant exposure to its wanton destruction intensify our indignation that this war is allowed to continue. In pursuit of military victory, the U.S. has employed, widely and indiscriminately, anti-personnel weapons, napalm and white phosphorus, paid assassins, starvation, mercenaries, and saturation bombing of civilians. Indochina has become a laboratory of death, where new weapons and strategies are endlessly tested."

Estimating that in South Vietnam alone our bombing has created more than 10 million craters, the paper quotes two U.S. university professors as saying that the land "will be very difficult, if not impossible, to recultivate." The Friends assert that according to official military sources, bulldozing of forests has leveled more than 750,000 acres, and continues at the rate of 1,000 acres a day.

"In an area the size of New England," the report claims, "the United States has expended over three times the amount of explosives used in all of World War II." Nearly one third the population of all Indochina, it further states,

"have been driven from their homes."

The Friends see this country as paying a big price too. "Though advanced technology has permitted the United States to conduct a war a half a world away and has kept most of the visible scars from our shores," the paper says, "we are convinced that the real U.S. interest at stake in Southeast Asia is spiritual: if the American public permits the countries of Indochina to be destroyed in the name of democracy and freedom, then we can only view the future of this country and the world with foreboding."

The Friends recommend an immediate end of all U.S. involvement and the withdrawal of all our forces and materiel, to allow formation of a coalition government without American interference; the offer of asylum to "any persons who feel endangered by the prospects of a negotiated solution," and making available "generous reparations and help in reconstruction."

Over many years the American Friends Service Committee has established a reputation for spiritually motivated concerns, and for calm, even-handed responsibility in its investigations and conclusions. This White Paper is obviously highly controversial. However one views it, or its propriety, one can surely observe that for the Friends to use such sweeping condemnatory language is a sad measure of how this terrible war has risen and changed America.

Did Mussolini murder Pope Pius XI?

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY

Europe has been electrified by an article in a French magazine Paris-Match on May 13, 1972.

Paris-Match has attributed to the late Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, Dean of the College of Cardinals, charges that Pope Pius XI was poisoned.

The magazine states that on the orders of Mussolini, the Pope was given a poisoned hypodermic by a physician on the Vatican's medical staff. The physician was the father of Mussolini's mistress, Clara Petacci.

According to Paris-Match, Pope Pius XI was strongly anti-Nazi. In 1939, when he learned that certain Italian Fascists wanted Mussolini to imitate Hitler in persecuting the church, Pius XI ordered Cardinal Tisserant to summon the Italian bishops.

The Pope planned to condemn fascism in a forcefully worded discourse.

Ill and in great pain, he allegedly asked the physician to administer a pain killing hypodermic. Several hours later, the Pope died.

There was dissension among the Cardinals as to his successor. Cardinal Tisserant, Paris-Match says, judged Cardinal Pacelli to be too pro-German.

A Frenchman by birth, Cardinal Tisserant had served in World War I. He detested Fascism and Nazism, and abhorred the Vichy government after France's collapse in World War II.

Other French Cardinals persuaded him to agree to the election of Cardinal Pacelli who became Pope Pius XII. All of this and much more is allegedly in the memoirs of Cardinal Tisserant who died in a hospital near Rome last February.

He left 12 large cases of papers and manuscripts. He entrusted many of these documents to a close friend, The Very Rev. Georges Roche, with a death-bed request that the documents be published.

The Paris-Match article states that the documents include many secrets: that General de Gaulle was not afraid of the Communists in 1945. Cardinal Tisserant visited De Gaulle, head of the provisional French government, and also German Chancellor Adenauer, asking them to work for reconciliation of the French and German people. This was the beginning of their relationship.

The documents allegedly show the differences between Cardinal Tisserant and Pope John XXIII because the Cardinal was a friend to Zionists. He was always a friend to Jews, read Hebrew fluently, and was a great student of the Old Testament.

Now, Panorama, a Milan, Italy, magazine has published an article with these and other startling revelations. The article is said to be based on Cardinal Tisserant's documents and testimony of The Very Rev. Monsignor Roche and Miss Paule Hennequin. She is a niece of the late Cardinal, and served as his secretary for 16 years.

Miss Hennequin is suing to obtain documents allegedly removed by the Vatican from the Cardinal's home after his death.

A spokesman for the Vatican denied the charge attributed to Cardinal Tisserant by Paris-Match and Panorama that Pope Pius XI had been poisoned. The Vatican emphasized that Dr. F. S. Petacci, allegedly responsible, had never attended the Pope during his last illness.

Confident living You have power to be a winner

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

"If you have faith," says the most reliable document ever written, "nothing shall be impossible." This means that you have it in your potential to overcome every difficulty facing you, to change the slant of your thought and so reach goals that now appear impossible.

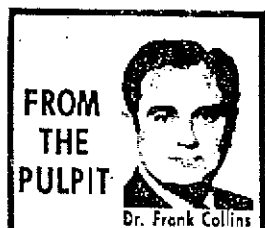

How often do you dully say, "I can't do it?" If you repeat that negative thought to your subconscious mind often enough, it will become a fact, a defeating fact. Then when you happen to come up with a proposition that obviously has some possibilities and you hopefully think "perhaps I can do it," your subconscious mind will answer that you can't. You have trained it to answer negatively. Your creative imagination has formed a picture of yourself as failing and so you do fail.

AND WHO wants to be a failure? The answer to that one is easy: no one except maybe a few oddballs. So get positive convictions into your mind about what you want to be.

For Gail Fisher, gal Friday to private eye, Joe Mannix, on the television series, "Mannix, it wasn't easy at all. 'I've got the pain to remind me of what 'I've had to do to get where I am, says Gail. "But I'm not through; I'm gonna go further." How's that for positive thinking. Gail was the first black person to make a national TV commercial on camera with lines. That was over ten years ago when blacks were rarely seen on television. But Gail was determined to be an actress. "My mother is a great lady who brought me up to know that there is no such thing as 'I can't,'" says Gail.

Many of Gail's friends discouraged her, for there just weren't many black actresses in those days. She worked in factories and when she was lucky, every once in a while, landed a modeling job. She had to skip meals to pay for acting lessons. She joined the Young Repertory Theater of Lincoln Center to work with top flight instructors. "I knew I was a good actress," says Gail, "and I wouldn't give up." Come right down to it, that's the score: have a goal, work, believe and never give up!

The Jerry Falwell Singers will be featured in our Sunday night services this Sunday. Most people are aware of the Falwell ministry because of the local television programs twice each Sunday.

However, as important as singing is, there is seldom a service given to music only, for "it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save those who believe."

The word for Christians to be extremely familiar with in all that it entails is "APOSTASY." I shall be speaking on that subject this Sunday night.

Don't miss our "round up" lessons on Revelation this coming Sunday morning at 9:45. The complete destruction of evil and the devil and the reign of righteousness, the New Heaven and New Earth, and god's closing words to this generation are important and extremely interesting! Be here also for the great 11 A.M. service.

CHURCH HUMOR

"Where's the fire, Reverend? And don't give me any of those theological answers!"

Today she is television's best known secretary. Six years in the role and an Emmy under her belt. Gail hopes to go on to even greater things. Of course her positive philosophy is bound to help her gain further successes. "We all have to do the best we can and if I die tomorrow, I believe I've done the best I could up to now." That's really something to be able to say!

If you believe you've done the best you can, and you plan to continue to give it all you've got, then for sure you're in! Believe there is something in you, in every one of us, that is greater than has even been shown or realized. Believe me, that is a fact, a great big fact.

Witness in Germany

A young Westminster woman is witnessing with her "ministry of song" in the coffee houses of Munich, Germany, this summer.

She is Sandra Burleson, 19, daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Westbrook. He is pastor of Christ Church of Westminster. She trained for her evangelism earlier in Dallas in the world-wide Youth With a Mission Olympic Crusade.

Last year she worked with the Houses of Happiness, a Christian orphanage and school in Quito, Ecuador. She is active in Christ Church and at Southern California College at Costa Mesa.

'Take stand,' priests say

NEW YORK (AP) — "Do not remain silent... take a stand... Do something yourself... Act together... Seek provisional solutions... Whenever ecclesiastical authority acts in a way that clearly fails to correspond to the Gospel, resistance is permitted and even required... don't give up."

This pungent advice comes from a group of 34 noted Roman Catholic theologians who say their church is in a state of "stagnation and resignation" and who urge unflinching and forthright action to overcome the crisis.

CANDIDATES' WIVES HOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE IN MIAMI BEACH. Mrs. George McGovern, right, listens to Mrs. Tom Eagleton at Press Meeting. —AP Wirephoto

Candidates' wives plan active role in campaign

By FRANCES LEWINE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hardly caught up on their sleep, the wives of Democratic candidates George McGovern and Thomas Eagleton promised an active campaign for the White House and active roles if and when they get there.

Eleanor McGovern said that as a president's wife she would want to be a White House advocate to speak out for children "who cannot speak for themselves."

In a joint news conference Friday morning with Barbara Eagleton, she promised to work on programs that would take on the problems of unhappy, alienated young people before they get in trouble.

The two wives, Eleanor in red, Barbara in bright green, conceded their campaign roles are not settled. The subject will be discussed when the two candidates' families get together shortly in seclusion in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

THE Eagletons are going first to visit Mrs. Eagleton's twin sister, Donna Smith, in Palm Beach, Fla.

"Isn't it an amazing coincidence," said Mrs. McGovern, pointing out that each woman has a twin sister.

Mrs. McGovern's twin, Ila Pennington of Rockville, Md., is identical. It created a lot of confusion in the campaign, Mrs. McGovern said, "because a lot of people are not quite sure whether it's Mrs. McGovern or Mrs. McGovern's sister who is appearing."

Mrs. Eagleton's sister, Miss Smith, is not identical, however, and won't be confused with the blonde, blue-eyed 5-foot-5 wife of the vice-presidential candidate.

ABORTION, a frequently raised question, came up again. Mrs. McGovern reiterated that she thinks it's a problem to be answered on the local level and she'd like to see more emphasis on education and research in providing simple contraceptive devices.

Mrs. Eagleton said that, as a Roman Catholic, "I'm certainly not for abortion."

A native of St. Louis, Mo., the 38-year-old Mrs. Eagleton said she came from a Republican family. Her father, Frank J. Smith, was the founder of the Smith-Schiff Paper Co.

She said the offer of the vice presidency from McGovern came as a surprise. When her husband asked her advice on whether to take it, she said "If it's offered — GO."

Mrs. McGovern was asked if her husband sought her advice in the vice-presidential choice.

"After saying for so long that I was in on all policy decisions," Mrs. McGovern acknowledged, "I did know the names. But yesterday morning I indulged myself and went on a boat trip with my children. And the decision was made when I returned."

ber of minority fire fighters. The council is considering a recommendation from its police, fire and civil defense committee that the city go to court, if necessary to oppose the federal action.

The committee agreed Thursday that the city would violate its charter if it complied with federal demands. The charter requires that job applicants with the highest test scores be given preference for appointments.

The committee's recommendation will now be referred to the council's personnel committee for study. The committee is scheduled to report back on Aug. 2.

Judge upholds will

A Los Angeles judge Friday upheld the will of a college teacher who left $100,000 to a foundation that froze his body until science can bring him back to life.

The ruling was issued in the case of the late James H. Bedford of Glendale who died of lung cancer Jan. 12, 1967, at the age of 73.

In a will dated 13 days before his death, Bedford revoked a trust set up for his 12 grandchildren and bequeathed the money to the International Foundation for Cryonics Research Inc.

He became the first person whose body was frozen after death in the hopes he could be revived when medical science advanced to the point where the disease that caused his death can be cured.

The will was challenged by the grandchildren, who contended Bedford was influenced unfairly to change the document.

Bank holds bag emptied of $62,000

BERKELEY (AP) — The Bank of America appeared Friday to be holding the bag — a bag notably empty to the tune of $62,000 — in a fast shuffle executed by an East Bay operator posing as an officer of the Black Studies Student Association at the University of California, Berkeley.

But the San Francisco Examiner reported someone deposited a $75,000 check last week in the bank account of the BSSA, which maintains a small checking account of several hundred dollars for operating expenses.

The check was drawn on the Kaiser Cement and Gypsum Corp., one of the Kaiser corporations which for several years have been active in community affairs.

This week, said the newspaper, a man representing himself as a BSSA official appeared at the bank and since the group had a chance to buy a long-sought headquarters building. Priced at $87,000, it could be purchased for $62,000 cash, he said.

Since the BSSA's account showed a balance of more than $75,000, the cash was provided, the Examiner said.

Later this week the bank learned that the $75,000 check was a forgery.

Conflicting stories

Was O'Brien given the heave-ho?

By DICK BARNES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Lawrence F. O'Brien told Sen. George McGovern at one point Friday that he might stay on as Democratic national chairman, only to have the presidential nominee say he would discuss the matter with his own aides.

McGovern's version was that he repeatedly had asked O'Brien to remain.

But other sources said the chairman and the presidential candidate met privately twice during the day, and that O'Brien had at one point said he would reconsider his decision to leave the post.

McGovern, these sources said, replied he would have to further consider that. O'Brien then said he would revert to his original position and leave the chairmanship.

McGovern attributed O'Brien's departure to personal reasons. Other sources said the reasons didn't exist.

And so O'Brien left the job he had held for 2½ years and McGovern picked as party chairman Jean Westwood of West Jordan, Utah, a principal advisor to the South Dakota senator.

McGOVERN told the Democratic National Committee Friday he had tried four times, the last on Friday, to get O'Brien to stay. McGovern did not say the final negotiations broke down over terms of the job. He attributed O'Brien's decision to personal reasons. O'Brien would not comment.

It was the third publicly announced personnel decision by McGovern in his two days as Democratic presidential nominee to leave a curious residue of puzzlement among or about the job candidates.

The inside account of Friday's maneuverings went this way:

— The nominee called

O'Brien to his 17th floor hotel suite for a 55-minute meeting. O'Brien at first refused the job again, believing that the chairmanship and role of the national committee would be diminished under McGovern's plans.

— After McGovern insisted that they would not be diminished, O'Brien agreed to stay.

— McGovern then talked to his staff privately before getting back with O'Brien for a second meeting. At that session, he told O'Brien he couldn't sell his staff on the package. O'Brien then said he would not stay on.

The two are to meet in coming days, McGovern said, to discuss other campaign roles for O'Brien.

Poll shows big Nixon gain

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — President Nixon's popularity jumped 4.5 percentage points during the Democratic national convention, according to the Sandler Political Confidence Report.

The poll said Friday that of 1,116 persons interviewed by telephone during the convention, 54.2 per cent said they would vote for Nixon if the presidential election were held now. The poll was conducted from Monday to Thursday night.

The poll asked: "If the presidential election were being held today, would you yourself vote for the reelection of President Nixon?" Yes answers were 54.2 per cent; No answers were 31.0 per cent; don't know or can't vote answers accounted for the rest.

In answer to the question, "If the presidential election were being held today, of all the candidates you can think of, who would you say right now is your number 1 choice to be the next president?" 51.5 per cent said Nixon, 7.4 per cent said Sen. Hubert Humphrey, 1.7 per cent said Sen. Edmund Muskie, 3.4 per cent said

Sen. Edward Kennedy, 13.2 per cent said Gov. George Wallace, 14.7 per cent said Sen. George McGovern — the Democratic nominee — and the rest divided among Heps, Wilbur Mills and Shirley Chisholm and Sen. Henry Jackson.

The poll did not ask a question which directly compared President Nixon to Sen. McGovern, however. The poll said Nixon's 54.2 per cent rating was the highest such rating in the past two decades, higher even than President Eisenhower's rating the week before the 1956 presidential election against Adlai Stevenson.

NEW POST FOR CONNALLY

"more in accord with President Nixon's views."

He singled out for criticism McGovern's pledge to bring home all American troops and prisoners from Vietnam within 90 days after his inauguration. "Obviously, a president of the United States has no power to bring home prisoners of war" until Hanoi is ready to release them, he said.

Connally said McGovern's end-the-war pledge was "an unfair statement" which "sabotages the efforts" of Nixon to negotiate an end to the war. He said there is no hope for a negotiated settlement so long as the Democratic nominee is campaigning on such a platform.

He also criticized McGovern's economic policies "as the height of fiscal irresponsibility" and said his promise to grant amnesty to young men who left the country to avoid the draft was "a glorification of men who refused to serve their nation."

Connally's attack on the Democratic nominee appeared to signal the start of a continuing White House assault on McGovern and it indicated Nixon's campaign will hit hard on the senator's liberal positions.

The former cabinet member said he didn't want his decision to work for Nixon's re-election "to enhance speculation" that he might become Nixon's running mate. "I have no such ambition, and I have no such anticipation," he said. But he refused to rule out the possibility.

Connally said he didn't expect to formally head a "Democrats for Nixon" organization, but that he would work hard in the campaign to garner Democratic support for the President because it is "in the best interests of this country."

As Connally was reporting to Nixon on his extended tour of four continents, another presidential emissary was flying to California to brief Nixon on his journey.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who visited 15 cities in his just-concluded trip, is scheduled to meet with the President at the Western White House about noon today.

Prior to the Rogers meeting, the White House said, the President will fly by helicopter to Riverside to attend funeral services for a maternal aunt, Edith Timberlake, who died Tuesday night.

The President, accompanied by his Irish setter King Timahoe, went swimming for about one hour late Friday afternoon at Red Beach at the north end of Camp Pendleton. Nixon has been swimming at the scenic private beach, his favorite, or at the Western White House pool every day on his current two-week California visit.

Metered on-ramps cut congestion on freeway

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Metering of San Diego Freeway on-ramps through Long Beach has "operated with great success, virtually eliminating the previous freeway congestion during peak travel periods," the city manager's office said Friday.

A June survey by the State Division of Highways showed that travel times between the Long Beach and San Gabriel freeways during metering periods were nearly 50 per cent better northbound and 40 per cent southbound than in 1968.

AVERAGE speed on the 7.6-mile segment of San Diego Freeway jumped from 28 miles an hour northbound and 32 m.p.h. southbound in 1968 to 53 m.p.h. northbound and 50 m.p.h. southbound last month.

In the ramp metering program, traffic signals have been installed on all on-ramps to San Diego Freeway between the Long Beach and San Gabriel freeways. For a major portion of each 24-hour period, the lights are green.

During peak traffic hours, the lights alternate red and green, feeding cars onto the freeway at a pre-determined rate to prevent congestion.

Ramp metering on the northbound on-ramps is in operation Monday through Friday from 6:15 to 8:15 a.m. Southbound on-ramps are metered Monday through Friday from 3:30 to 5:45 p.m.

THE METERING rates vary from three cars per minute to 15 cars per minute. Sal Spitz, Long Beach city traffic engineer, said the average wait on the ramps is about one minute.

and 20 seconds, and that compliance has been "very good." Violations have been observed in only three to five per cent of the vehicles entering the freeway, he said.

City Manager John R. Mansell, in a report to be delivered Tuesday to the City Council, said the metering has resulted in some traffic being rerouted to city streets, but that improvements designed by the city and funded by the state have "effectively avoided any observable detriment to operation of those streets."

Mansell said there still are "bottlenecks" on San Diego Freeway, both east and west of the city, but that construction projects under way or soon to be started will correct these problems.

Correction of the "bottleneck" to southbound traffic just east of the city is expected late this summer when construction now under way will be finished. West of Long Beach, the "bottleneck" to northbound traffic will be solved by the next freeway project, scheduled for completion in early 1974.

Spitz said there have been "virtually no complaints" about the ramp metering. His office received about 10 calls, he said, but most were of general inquiry nature.

The ramp-metering project cost $750,000, but state highway officials said they believe the saving in travel time has an annual value to motorists of "several times" the cost.

Virility still a mystery

Frasier laid to rest overlooking domain

Funeral services for Frasier, the sensuous lion, will be held at 10 a.m. today on a grassy knoll overlooking his domain at Lion Country Safari in Laguna Hills, but there will be no fanfare.

The much-publicized sire of 35 cubs will be buried in a simple wooden casket beneath a mast-like marker in the Orange County wild game attraction. He died Thursday.

"There will be no eulogy," a spokesman said Friday. "We want a dignified ceremony."

DOCTORS who performed an autopsy on the amorous old lion Friday reported that it wasn't his sex life that killed Frasier. If anything, they said, his sexual escapades probably prolonged it.

"Internally, he was a very healthy lion," reported Dr. Hugh Orlando of the University of California at Irvine. "There were no abnormalities in his genital system at all."

Dr. Orlando was one of 12 pathologists and urologists who performed an autopsy on the old lion. They came away baffled, unable to explain the secret of his longevity and virility.

"He had a well-preserved heart and cardiovascular system," said Dr. Orlando. His state of health was reported to be "remarkable" at the old lion's age of 20. His human age equivalent would have been about 80.

Cause of death was given as pneumonia.

Reflections in the sunset

It is that time of day when the sun is about to leave its station in the sky and turn the night watch over to the moon, which awaits impatiently off-stage. It is a time to stroll along the beach, hand in hand, and discuss the events of the closing day and give voice to one's expectations of tomorrow. It is the quiet time, the time of peace and reflection.

L.B. rapists sentenced

I sent to mental hospital, second gets prison term

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

One of two men tried separately on charges of committing more than 15 rapes in the central area of Long Beach was committed to Atascadero State Hospital as a mentally disordered sex offender Friday in Long Beach Superior Court, and the other was sentenced to state prison.

Judge Elsworth M. Beam denied the mental-hospital commitment to Frederick Arthur Reese, 25, a state prison parolee whom the deputy district attorney described as "a cat burglar of the first degree" who committed sex offenses only when he found an opportunity in the course of burglaries.

REESE'S attorney, Deputy Public Defender Kenneth Aid Jr., sought a delay in sentencing to permit additional psychiatric examination of the defendant. He said a psychiatrist had recommended further studies.

Judge Beach Vasey ruled that Terry Mack George, 21, of 143 W. 53rd St., was eligible for the hospital commitment as a legally "unusual case."

Dep. Dist. Atty. Joseph V. Siler argued that George, who pleaded guilty to one count each of burglary, robbery and sex crime against a child, was ineligible under state law because he carried a knife in committing eight of his crimes. In one instance a victim suffered severe injury.

George's attorney, Deputy Public Defender Malcolm S. MacMillan, sought withdrawal of the guilty pleas, contending that he, the prosecutor and the court had not informed the defendant of factors that would legally rule out a hospital commitment.

MacMillan claimed that unless George was qualified in the unusual-case category, he would demand rights to a trial. He argued that no one was aware of the eligibility requirements for a state hospital commitment at the time he entered the pleas.

Reports of three psychiatrists said George is likely to benefit from the hospital treatment. The commitment ordered by Judge Vasey is for an indeterminate period, after which the case will be returned to court with recommendations for further action.

Reese, of 610 Orange Ave., was charged with eight offenses. He pleaded guilty to one charge of rape and one of burglary.

JUDGE BEAM sentenced him to concurrent terms of three years to life for the rape and five years to life for the first-degree burglary. The court made the sentences concurrent with the previous sentence for a burglary from which Reese had been on parole.

The additional charges against each defendant were dismissed on prosecution motions.

Fox, believed rabid, attacks 4 men, girl

By ROB GEIVET
Staff Writer

A wild fox, thought to be rabid, attacked four men and a girl sleeping on the ground at San Clemente State Park, and bit the four men so seriously that they are undergoing anti-rabies treatment.

Dr. Thomas Hamilton, director of health services for the Orange County Health Department, said that two men are under treatment at the county's medical center, and the other two are under treatment by their own physicians after initial care at the county hospital.

The girl was not bitten, although the animal bit into her sleeping bag, Dr. Hamilton said.

The doctor declined to identify any of the persons involved but said all were in their late teens and early 20s. One man and the girl were from Los Angeles County, one man was from Walnut Creek and the others from Ontario and Costa Mesa.

The attacks occurred Wednesday night as the victims slept and were unprovoked, Dr. Hamilton said.

He said it was the first case of suspected fox rabies since the early 1940s. Hamilton cautioned that wild foxes, skunks and bats are "wild reservoirs" for rabies and are to be avoided at all times. He advised campers not to sleep on the ground without protection.

Three of the men were bitten on the face, the fourth on the shoulder.

The treatment they are undergoing is similar to the Pasteur treatment for rabies, which is extremely painful. But Hamilton said the new schedule of vaccination is not so severe. It consists of an anti-serum shot followed by 21 vaccinations, two daily for the first week and one daily for the second week, followed by two booster shots.

IT'S ALREADY A WINNER

Olympic contribution from Long Beach to participants in this summer's games at Munich — a molded stainless steel artwork — already is assured a winner's status. The untitled work, representing its creator's view of human bodies slicing through water, is the accomplishment of Stephen Werlick, art professor at Long Beach State University, who will present his work to the Olympics games swimmers at Munich. Studying the sculpture during its current exhibition in the campus library is Aubrey Harter of Seal Beach.

Ecology honor for USS Bainbridge

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

The nuclear frigate USS Bainbridge, whose home port is Long Beach, has won the first environmental protection award issued by the secretary of the Navy.

The Bainbridge received the award Friday for "the greatest initiative of any Navy ship toward operating in an environmentally acceptable manner," according to an announcement from Sec. John B. Warner.

The ship, currently operating in the eastern Pacific, has an ecology club aboard that attempts to educate crewmen on environmental matters.

The ship has taken part in many clean-up campaigns in Southern California and overseas. SCUBA divers from the ship have cleaned up the water while other Bainbridge sailors cleaned beaches.

The Bainbridge also has recycling programs for aluminum, newspaper, cardboard and metal. Containers are placed throughout the ship for gathering waste materials.

Dreaded thrip hits L.B. trees

FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

SACRAMENTO — A new insect has been found in Long Beach where it was feeding on the leaves of a liquidambar tree, according to the California Department of Agriculture.

Louis Blanc, a program supervisor in the Department's Exclusion and Detection program, said the new thrips, in the Scirtothrips genus, is related to the citrus thrip, which is native to California.

It feeds on the tree leaves, rasping the leaf's surface with its mouth parts, causing the leaf to bleed so the thrips can feed on the juices.

THIRPS damage is often the cause of blemishes on fruits, especially at the stem end, resulting in a russeting or scabby appearance on the skin. Control is costly to farmers and growers of many crops.

A delimitation survey is being conducted in the Long Beach area by personnel of the Los Angeles County Agricultural Commissioner's office, and the State Department of Agriculture is alerting Agricultural Commissioners throughout the state to be on the watch for this new pest.

It is not yet known how many plants the Scirtothrips may attack, and pest control officials plan to watch it closely.

Q.—Enclosed leaves are from our tomato plants. The plants are quite tall. We have stakes on the vines to train them upright, with irrigation shallow on each side of the row. Each row consists of six plants. We only have a small spot in one of our planters for them, as our yard is quite small. Our problem is, the lower leaves are curling and some of the new ones in the tops of the plants seem rather wilted and curled. Could you tell me what you think is the problem and what we can do to save them. They are starting to put on little tomatoes. We have used tomato dust. The plants are the "Big Boy." We planted tomatoes three times last year and all the plants died. We are becoming discouraged. L.M.F., Lakewood.

A.—Your description of the leaves indicates the problem is a fungus disease. Once that starts, there's nothing we know of that stops it. Cross your fingers and hope the formed tomatoes will ripen enough to harvest before you dig the plants out and throw them into the rubbish.

Jobs for gardeners

THOSE vertical galls imbedded in mum leaves, tips or stems are midge galls. The maggots they hatch produce minute galls. Such infestation is more likely to occur on greenhouse grown mums than outdoor plants. Recommended control is to spray the plants with nicotine sulphate or a weak solution oil emulsion spray. WATCH closely for unwanted rose sucker branches that grow out of the bush trunk below the bud union area, beside the rose bush, from a root, or trunk below the soil level. Tear off such suckers. Do not cut them. Tearing off completely removes all the growth. Cutting them off leaves a portion of the growth to regrow.

FADED hydrangea flower-head branches should be cut off second or third bud above the previous cut. Long branch growth that finished blooming should be cut back to desired length. Continue deep watering.

can to be hauled away. Do not throw them on your compost pile! I wonder if you started soon enough with the vegetable-tomato dust? You should have dusted the plants as soon as you planted them, then continued dusting once a week, whether you thought they needed a dusting or not. I hope you don't have nematodes (invisible to the naked eye) attacking the roots of the plants. Rough knobs on the roots indicate nematodes are at work feeding on the vital sap juices. If no nematodes are present, plant the tomatoes again. Keep up the dusting as recommended and you should harvest good crops of tomatoes. Be sure they are planted in prepared soil and watered well.

Q.—Thank you for telling your readers of the plants I have to give away. Many plant lovers have come for them. Now, another question: the way the Guam Lily multiplies is very interesting. Is it edible? Mrs. Mary Jones, 4723 Palo Verde, Lakewood 90713.

A.—I don't know. I've never heard of the plant and can't find it listed in my horticulture books. Could you give me more information about it? How tall does it grow? What kind of flower does it produce? What time of the year does it bloom? Do you know its botanical name?

Junipers still are the most popular of minimum care shrubs that landscape contractors and landscape architects are likely to recommend for certain types of landscaping.

Of all species, the Juniper Wiltoni with silver-blue foliage is probably the lowest grower. One shrub spreads out four to five feet but is only four inches tall. They are excellent for bank plantings or as ground covers.

All junipers from the lowest growers to the tallest are susceptible to spider mite infestation if the gardener fails to bathe the plants with a sharp water spray at least twice a month. Hosing repels mites from settling on the shrubs. We recently diagnosed some large planters at the airport as being infested with spider mites. The symptoms were observed as far as 20 feet away. The foliage looked as though wind had blown sand over the moist plants. But the sand appearance remained when the foliage was dry. But it wasn't sand, but those nasty mites!

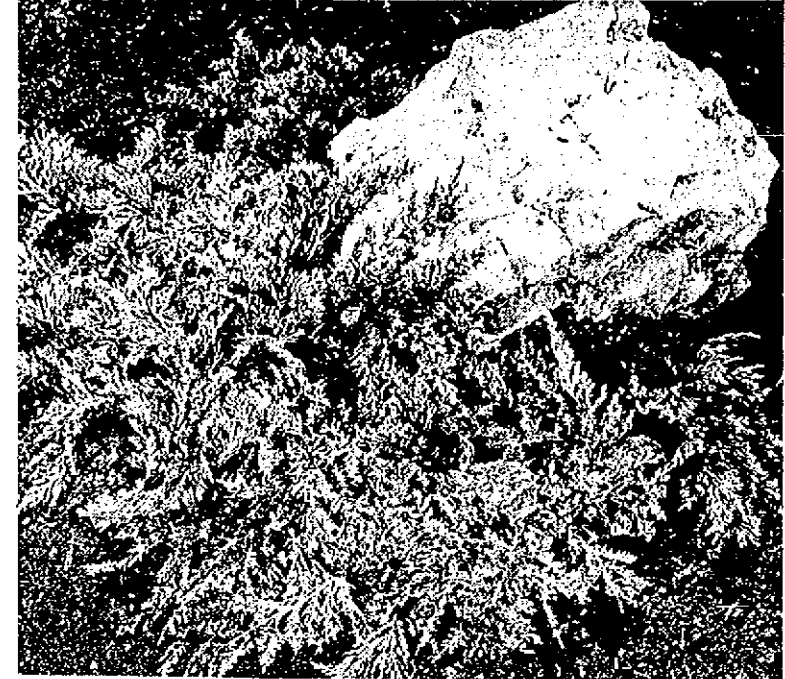

SHRUBS or smaller plants that tolerate an oil emulsion spray will be much happier because such a spray not only kills the mites, but also the eggs, while a milder type of spray kills only the adult mites. There are several broods of mites a year.

LIVING color can be planted in between the young junipers by setting out mixed colors of petunias, or gold, orange or yellow long-blooming, low-growing hybrid mule marigolds.

Two parts of organic material should be mixed with three parts soil to prepare the hole for planting. The hole must be filled with water at least once. Twice would be better. The extra water helps the plant roots to seek deeper moisture. Watering of the plants maintains the deep soil moisture, hence the plants grow quicker and better.

In the hole mix bone meal or a flower-fruit fertilizer with a layer of prepared soil over it before planting. Annuals set out now, whether I seed sown or planted from flats grow much faster, and bloom quicker due to the hot days and mild nights.

A thoughtful gardener wouldn't think of setting out flat-size plants in the morning or during the heat of the day. It is better to plant them late afternoon. This cushions the shock of transplanting and given the plants about 20 hours of coolness to catch their breath so they may better withstand the following day's heat.

Small plantings — even two rows of plants numbering a dozen or so — create more pleasing color contrasts if lower plants are set out in front of the taller ones.

Combinations like this add more living color to the garden. For example: different colored petunias in front of tall orange, red,

Proper watering keeps lawns green

High on the list in the chore category is the proper watering for lawns. By proper, not too much or too little water, and at the right time. In Southern California, during the dry season, that's usually ten or fifteen minutes a night.

So how can you avoid being obligated to your lawn, as one Southern California man put it, "every blooming spare minute?"

Toro Greenkeeper is an underground sprinkler control system that's easy to understand, easy to have installed and serviced, and economical.

and yellow amaranthus provides the brightest possible garden imaginable.

AN unusual low combination planting is dwarf lavender ageratum in front of foot-tall mule marigolds of gold, yellow and orange.

Zinnias of orange, red, white, rose, and pink furnish colorful background for blue petunias in foreground.

Perennials may be planted with annuals. The showy Statice (limonium) Sea lavender with minute masses of flower heads (whose flowers can be dried and used for dry arrangements) show off to better effect if mule marigolds are planted in front of them.

Coleus, with mixture of some irregular designs of showy colors in the leafage, is effectively emphasized by a planting of campanula portenschlagiana in front of them.

'46 slayer of officer given bail

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — Erwin "Machine Gun" Walker, who spent more than 20 years in prison for the fatal shooting of a California Highway Patrolman, was free Friday on $20,000 bail.

Walker was granted his freedom pending an Appellate Court decision on whether he should be tried again for the shooting death of Officer Loren Roosevelt in June, 1946, outside a poultry shop.

Walker, 55, did not utter a word as he left the Solano County Courthouse at 6:20 p.m. Thursday with his attorney, Altheron Phleger of San Francisco. He was dressed in a blue sport shirt and gray slacks and appeared pale from his long confinement. His destination was not known.

WALKER, who has been an inmate of the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, was originally sentenced to death, but on the day of his scheduled execution, April 15, 1949, he was granted a reprieve on grounds of insanity. Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Authorities who investigated the shooting said Walker apparently intended to burglarize the shop where the patrolman was killed to obtain a clean chicken leather for use in brushing nitroglycerin in cracks around a safe door to blow it open.

Last year, psychiatrists told a court hearing that Walker became schizophrenic during World War II when he saw an Army buddy decapitated during a battle with the Japanese in the Pacific. They said he felt guilty about not reporting weaknesses in camp defenses.

THE DOCTORS said he began having hallucinations in which he created a giant ray gun to be used to end the war. They said he embarked on a series of burglaries to obtain money to build the gun.

Walker, according to later psychiatric testimony, is now sane and has done "brilliant" work as a medical technician in fields including electronics, bacteriology and clinical chemistry.

His conviction was overturned by Solano County Superior Court Judge Raymond J. Shorvin on grounds of involuntary statements made to investigators, lack of adequate counsel and invalid procedures during his first-degree murder trial.

The state currently is appealing that decision, but an appellate court ruled bail should be set for Walker in the interim.

Prisoner on work furlough killed in fall

SAN RAFAEL, (AP) — A 48-year-old San Quentin Prison inmate, on his first day of work furlough, Friday fell to his death from a scaffolding, prison officials said.

Virgil Burnside, of San Bernardino County, was working as a plasterer on a San Rafael apartment house in 100 degree heat, when his foreman said he saw him fall from the scaffolding and strike his head on a rock. Burnside was dead on arrival at Marin County Hospital. The coroner said it had not determined whether he died of a heart attack or the fall.

Burnside, who had been at San Quentin on a second-degree burglary conviction since April, 1966, was to have been discharged next October 8.

145 bombing plots in U.S. during June

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation said Friday there were 145 actual or attempted bombing incidents throughout the nation in June.

The monthly statistics brought the total number of bombing incidents during the first six months of 1972 to 973, involving 12 deaths and 90 personal injuries.

The June bombings injured 17 persons but there were no deaths reported for that month.

THE FBI statistics for the first half of 1972 showed that residences were the most frequent target, with 264 bombing attacks, followed by 241 commercial operations and office buildings.

Vehicles were the target of 113 bombings, 110 attacks were aimed at school facilities, while miscellaneous targets accounted for the rest.

The FBI said a total of 1,276 devices were involved for the six-month period, 523 of them explosive type bombs and 747 firebombs.

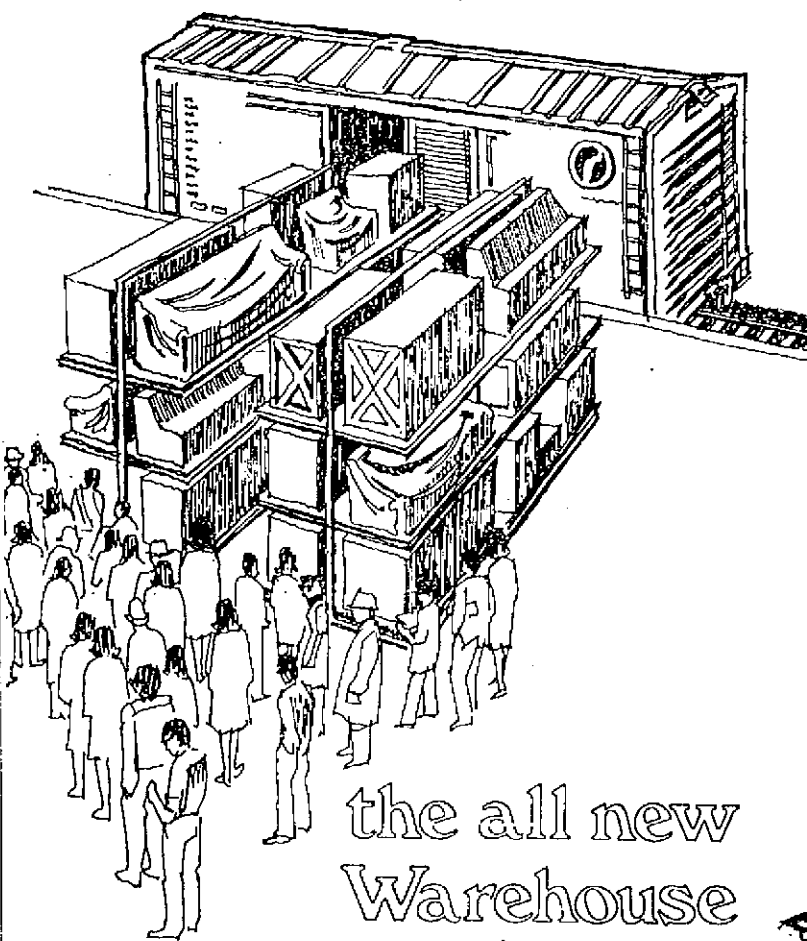

The FBI said 337 bombing incidents were scattered through the western states; 216 in the southern states; and 111 in the Northeast.

"AN' I'LL HAVE A GREAT BIG SLUG OF ROOT BEER ON-THE-ROCKS."

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: This coming year of healthy progress can lead you to a charmed life, but you must try to get it. Any self-improvement program involving participation in changing technology brings favored positions. Today's natives tend to be self-reliant, independent courses of idealistic activity.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Minding your own affairs while doing your share in communal Sunday customs is the best path. Later hours find relaxed conditions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Give everybody something to do, get things shaken down to tidy comfort. Then for evening you can enjoy a small party with old friends.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Whatever you intend, go about it discreetly. Future should be left for later discussion, along with announcements of what you are up to now.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Seek advice today, enjoy the attention, but make no definite promise of what you'll do about it. Sentimental interest comes alive.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't stay put this Sunday either in personal maturing or actual moving about. Learn, live, evolve toward wholeness, dignity.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This Sunday is indicated as nearly a free ride for you. Take shortcuts, skip routines wherever people will let you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get out early with your plans and good thoughts, and you have it made. Sunday activities should include catching up on your friends' news.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Doing things your way is the only effective course, requires tact. There are details which are hard to discover beforehand, but important.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Impulse can lead to strange and wonderful adventures this Sunday — it's better to hold off long enough to reflect on what you are asking for.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Staying near home pays off, you miss unwanted incidents while adding to your resources. It is time to review recent developments.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spread yourself to catch up with your family, in-laws, relatives — to listen rather than to instruct or direct.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Give some thought to your health and its care, avoiding stress and fatigue at present. Friends and family can make this a most enjoyable day.

blacks who work for the white establishment might have caused outrage. Today such scenes are common. And not merely in low budget exploitation films. Films made by blacks and aimed primarily at the black market are being financed on sizable budgets by major studios.

THIS is the result of a black revolution in the movie industry. Film companies have discovered belatedly that millions of dollars can be made by aiming movies primarily at the big city black audience. If the movies contain enough quality, they also will draw patronage from whites.

Hence, a bonanza such as MGM produced last year with "Shaft." The film reportedly grossed $18 million in the United States and Canada. It was MGM's only big hit in 1971.

The Negro's advent to Films by blacks, starring blacks, aimed for the black market is a new — and highly profitable — development in the American entertainment field. How did it come about? Are the pictures truly representative of the black experience? Following is an article on the black film phenomenon.

film prominence was a long time coming.

During the earliest years of movies, the black was portrayed as either servile, as in various versions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or lazy, as in two 1910 series, "Rastus" and "Samba."

The black as villain was exploited by D.W. Griffith in the 1915 "Birth of Nation." Griffith was so astonished by the outcry of prejudice that he made the epic "Intolerance" in his own defense.

The talkie period brought some all black films: "Hallelujah" by MGM in 1929; "The Green Pastures," Warner Brothers, 1936; "Stormy Weather," 20th Fox, 1943; "Cabin in the Sky," MGM, 1943;

"Carmen Jones," Prominger, 1954; "Porgy and Bess," Goldwyn, 1959; "Raisin in the Sun," Columbia, 1961.

None of these films was a financial success.

There was scant work for black actors during the first 50 years of film history. A few became well known, largely in roles as menials: Clarence Muse, Louise Beavers, Bill Robinson, Ethel Waters, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson. Hattie McDaniel won an Oscar for her role as Mammy in "Gone with the Wind."

OTHERS were relegated to roles in which they appeared incredibly lazy or frightened of ghosts. Stepin Fetchit, Willie Best, Fariña of the Our Gang comedies, and an actor who was called "Sleep 'n' Eat."

Paul Robeson played a few leading roles in the 1930s, mostly in non-Hollywood films such as "The Emperor Jones," and "Sanders of the River." Lena Horne appeared in MGM musicals, but her songs were carefully isolated so they could be cut from showings in the South.

Sidney Poitier was the star who triggered the Black Revolution in films.

The Nassau-born actor had been in movies since "No Way Out" in 1950, but he seemed destined for billing under such stars as Tony Curtis and Rock Hudson. Then in 1963 he starred in "Lilies of the Field," and won the Oscar as best actor.

Hollywood was quick to realize the value of the newfound star, and he appeared in such moneymakers as "A Patch of Blue," "To Sir with Love," "In the Heat of the Night" and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner."

BLACK pictures helped solve a crisis for theater owners. With whites moving to the suburbs, massive old theaters in the central cities seemed doomed to decay and destruction. The lure of black films began filling up those theaters with Negroes who remained in the cities.

Film companies began to

RICHARD ROUNDTREE
Star of 'Shaft'

see the need of black directors to interpret the black experience. Magazine photographer Gordon Parks was the pioneer with "The Learning Tree" in 1969. Last year he scored with "Shaft."

Melvin Van Peebles directed "Watermelon Man" for Columbia, then made "Sweet Sweetback" on his own for an immense profit. Other black directors include Mark Warren, "Come Back, Charleston Blue," Wendell Franklin, "A Bus Is Coming," Poitier, "Buck and the Preacher," Ivan Dixon, "Trouble Man." Even with blacks directing blacks, critics have raised the question: "Do these films really reflect the black experience or are they merely white films done in blackface?"

L.A. Philharmonic grabs spotlight

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

The Los Angeles Philharmonic, which took a back seat to singers and conductor at the season-opening "Aida" in Hollywood Bowl, Tuesday, came back Thursday night, at the season's second subscription event, to occupy its rightful and original place on the amphitheaters' stage; squarely in the middle of the spotlight.

It justified that placement, too, in a program encompassing music of Schubert, Chopin, and Debussy. Led by James Levine, conducting the second of his seven Bowl concerts this summer, the Philharmonic gave clear, clean, and straightforward performances. Levine may not live up to that extravagant phrase found in the ads — "young giant" — but he is, unmistakably, a promising talent going somewhere. It is a pleasure to watch him grow.

IN Schubert's Overture to "Rosamunde," to F minor Piano Concerto of Chopin (in which Andre Watts was soloist), and two pieces by Debussy — "La Mer" and "Prelude a l'après-midi d'un faune" — Levine was both careful and expansive, even though he drove the Overture rather too hard (and thereby sacrificed its insouciance), and seemed content, in "La Mer," to accept whatever orchestral balances the players — and the Bowl's ever more powerful sound-engineering department — provided.

The orchestra played well at all times, something which could not be said of their "Aida" performance two nights previous. Among several others, principal bassoonist David Breidenthal ought to be singled out for his solo contributions in the Chopin piece.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—B-7
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., July 15, 1972
ANDRE Watts, for his part, gave a solid and often charming reading of the Second Concerto, though one we must describe as spineless. He was many lovely moments, comforting fluidity, occasional nuances, and refreshing understatement. All that was missing was the actual substance of the music, and its component parts.

NEWPORT
an
town
Newport Beach is a gas ... leak! If you're lucky — or unlucky — enough to live in Newport Beach there are places in the city where you can roast your hotdogs without the aid of a barbecue. Just light a match to the appropriate crack in the sidewalk and VOILA! Your very own natural gas flame will burn almost perpetually. Try throwing a little water on it, and you have sulfuric acid. A grand way to eat hot dogs in the concrete or maybe your toes?
I.P.T. staff writer Jack O. Baldwin may be firing up some controversy in this explosive story of nature's curse to Newport Beach that man has compounded. Be sure to read Hellfire and Brimstone this Sunday in Southland Sunday.

Las Vegas attracts 16 million annually

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Statistics have showed that Las Vegas currently was attracting tourists at the rate of 16 million a year.

The figure compares to 7 million tourists in New York City annually, 7 million in the entire state of Florida and about 1 million for Hawaii.

The Las Vegas news bureau listed reasons for Las Vegas' popularity including legal casino gambling, good weather, outdoor activities such as golf, swimming, tennis, water skiing and boating, and entertainment.

Las Vegas boasts the largest assemblage of top name live entertainers and lavish stage spectacles of any city in the world.

If the entertainment cost of all Las Vegas resorts were totaled up for one week, it would be almost $2 million a week.

Casinos in Nevada reported gross winnings to the Nevada Gaming Commission in 1971 of $633 million.

Gambling experts said that represents about 20 per cent of the total money wagered in Nevada's casinos which means about $25 billion was handled at the gambling tables.

Gorilla love helps zoo set offspring mark

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bob Lotshaw, curator of the Cincinnati Zoo, said Friday "love" was the reason the zoo has tied the world record for lowland gorillas born in captivity.

"We are fortunate to have two pairs of gorillas who are very much in love with each other," said Lotshaw.

Broker's earnings could be linked to client's results

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

The president of E. F. Hutton & Company, Inc., envisions a structure within five years through which its earnings — and those of its account executives — will reflect the investment results of its clients, rather than stemming from commissions.

Robert M. Fomon gave his view at the second New York Stock Exchange National Marketing Conference held in New York City.

He added for emphasis: "We should not be afraid to wed our fortunes to our investment acumen."

This major departure was part of a series of forecasts of the future Fomon made to security industry executives attending the conference.

Fomon also predicted the current debate concerning a central marketplace will soon be forgotten.

"Even now," he said, "it is clear that there is no real need for a series of exchange floors, even ones linked electronically."

He stressed the important elements of the marketplace of the future would be "trade reporting and clearing rather than the place of execution."

He suggested that in the future all marketmakers would be linked together by NASDAQ or an adaptation like it on a firm-to-firm basis without need for intermediaries.

"It is quite likely that commissions could be a relatively unimportant factor for member firms by 1977."

He noted that mark-ups could replace commissions whether fixed or negotiated. Executing the bulk of all orders as a principal, Fomon commented, would permit firms to generate income on a trade-by-trade basis which was reasonable in relation to the size of the order, to the liquidity of the security and to the degree of service provided to the customer.

In a further look forward, Fomon suggested retail brokerage offices of the future may be organized as "capitalistic communes."

"The concept of communes and cells, only semi-facetiously, has application to the future structure of a branch office."

The Hutton executive suggested brokers within offices will be operating in groups of five or six. Each account executive, he submitted, would advise his own customers on matters relating to the stock market.

However, each of the five would have an investment specialty. They would pool their customers and revenues to offer clients expert advice in specific areas.

To illustrate, Fomon stated investors in the future might be handled by a commune in which one member would handle tax shelters and pension and profit plans.

Another broker might be a commodity and option expert; a third would advise clients on underwriting opportunities.

Another account executive might handle debt securities, while the fifth member would be operating in the area of mutual funds and life insurance.

By segregating the specialties, each office of E. F. Hutton could have men who are truly professional in a particular aspect of asset deployment. At the same time, personalized service could be maintained which could not be duplicated by a remote expert.

"The single broker trying to satisfy all of his clients' financial needs could not compete successfully with a commune of this nature," Fomon noted.

Recovery on

Southern California completed the first half of 1972 by posting another month of economic recovery during June.

Security Pacific National Bank's seasonally adjusted business index for June edged up to 150.1 (1967-100), representing an 11.5 per cent improvement over the 134.6 reading for June of 1971. Last month's index level indicated a slight gain over the May, 1972, mark of 148.3.

In the current issue of its Southern California Monthly Summary publication, compiled by the bank's Economic Research Division, Security Pacific Bank reports moderate to strong advances in strategic sectors of Southern California's economy.

"Preliminary analysis of June data indicates increases in most available business index components," said Assistant Vice President John H. Owens, administrator of Economic Research's Business Studies Section.

He reported annual — June of 1971 to June of 1972 — improvements in department store sales, bank debits and building permits, but a fractional decline in the real estate sales component.

"Initial economic input," Owens stated, "points to an 8.5 per cent annual rise in department store sales, up from the year-ago level of 126.6 to 137.3. Bank debits registered the sharpest year-to-year increase, up almost 19 per cent from last year's 192.5 to 228.8.

"Building permit activity in the ten Southland counties pushed up from last June's 201.9 mark to 236.5, a 17.1 per cent gain," Owens continued. "Real estate sales, as measured in Security Pacific Bank's index, posted a fractional, 0.9 per cent, June-June decline — dipping from last year's 119.0 to 117.9."

Owens stated that, on the basis of this preliminary data, Southern California's economy during June appears to have accelerated slightly ahead of its level in May, "and would indicate a continuation of this year's improving trend."

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM-C-1

Because of the national holiday, there were less data available than usual at press time. But the series that were at hand suggested that the index declined for the third consecutive week. Auto production fell sharply as storms in the East forced curtailment at two Ford plants and closed down a Chrysler plant for a week. Declines also occurred in steel output, railroad carloadings, and intercity truck tonnage.

INDUSTRY'S WEEK

Steel imports run high

Steel imports into the U.S. are running at the highest rate recorded in any year free from labor negotiations in the U.S. steel industry.

Only the labor negotiation years of 1971 and 1968 exceeded 1972 in the amount of steel imported in the first five months, Industry Week magazine pointed out this week.

Steel imports in the first five months of this year, the Commerce Department calculates, totaled 5,851,065 net tons compared with 6,943,585 tons in the corresponding period of last year and 6,651,532 tons in the like period of 1968.

This level of steel imports is costing the jobs of about 75,000 U.S. steelworkers per month, because it would take that many people to make the steel here.

The steel intake in May 1972 was the largest of any of the months thus far this year — 1,603,175 net tons. This is the fourth largest steel import total for May in the U.S. The record May was that of last year when 1,791,944 net tons of steel came into the country.

Steel arriving here in the first five months of this year, Industry Week pointed out, was shipped before the U.S. was able in May to obtain agreements from Japan and the European Economic Community (including the United Kingdom) that they will voluntarily hold down their steel shipments to the U.S. for three years.

This new agreement succeeds a three year pact that expired at the end of last year. Despite the existence of voluntary quotas, steel imports last year exceeded them. While Japanese and European steelmakers went somewhat above their quotas, mills in countries not covered by restraints increased their shipments sharply to the U.S.

Dollar value per net ton of the steel imports in the first five months of 1972 was the highest it has been in the corresponding period of any year — $158.89.

This results from two things: An increase in the price of imported steel, and an emphasis by foreign countries on sending the higher value products — like stainless steel — to the U.S.

The previous record for value per net ton in the first five months was $151.52 in 1970. In the corresponding period of last year, the value was $143.91.

The trend of steel imports obviously continues to worry steel executives in the U.S. Some of them feel that some relief from this problem could be achieved if nonreciprocity bargaining could be instituted in the steel industry.

If customers could feel there wouldn't be a periodic threat of a steelworkers' strike, they would lessen their dependence of foreign steel and thereby reduce imports to 10 million or 12 million net tons a year, or around 10 per cent of the market, Industry Week reported.

Reduced imports along with an orderly pattern of buying, a steel executive said, would go a long way in helping provide stable, high level production needed for profitability.

In recent years, the industry, under constant pressure, couldn't recoup costs with price increases. However, this year, with a fairly steady demand at a substantial level, will be profitable, and next year is expected to be better.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Package sales seen for stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — With institutional customers such as pension funds and life insurance companies taking an increasingly large role in the stock market, brokerage firms are edging toward financial "department store" offerings for their public customers.

The theory is that by offering public customers, both large and small, financial packages as well as simple stock and bond transactions, brokers can both increase their profits and help avoid excessive dependence on dealings with giant institutional customers.

The New York Stock Exchange, which has predicted that by 1980 institutions alone will buy and sell more stock than was traded on the exchange last year, has warned that concentration on such business could increase the financial vulnerability of a brokerage house.

THE "department store" concept would have brokers selling not only stocks and bonds, but total investment planning. The offerings could include personal money management for customers, real estate and tax shelter investments, tax exempt municipal bond investment funds and life insurance.

"There's a great public need for total investment planning and it makes sense to offer it through brokerage firms which already have the expertise in equity," says Stuart S. Greenberg, vice president in charge of investor services at Du Pont Glove Forgan.

"And from an economic standpoint it makes sense for us, because instead of one product we're selling five," he adds. "The year 1969 and 1970 taught us a bitter lesson that when volume dries up commissions go. It's foolish to be dependent on commissions and it's foolish not to have some diversification."

GREENBERG has organized DGF Financial Services Inc., which, he says, will offer investors that total approach through a group of trained financial planning representatives.

Leon T. Kendall, president of the Securities Industry Association, a nationwide trade association for brokerage firms, predicts that by 1985 commission income will account for only 28 per cent of brokerage firm revenues compared with 57 per cent in 1969. Special products such as selling insurance or marketing interests in oil drilling ventures and real estate will account for 23 per cent of those revenues in 1985 compared with 8 per cent in 1969, he says.

A spokesman for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, another leader in the financial services field, notes that no brokerage firm has really developed a financial department store yet. But most retail firms like Merrill Lynch are actively diversifying away from the brokerage business.

THE New York Stock Exchange recently revised its rules to permit brokerage firms to sell insurance. Many brokerage firms are already offering mutual funds and municipal bond funds. Some firms are dealer-managers for oil drilling programs and real estate programs in which they sell investors limited partnerships in the programs. In addition there are similar cattle programs and agricultural programs.

Many of these programs are tax shelter investment offering customers the incentive of tax writeoffs because of the risky investments involved.

Du Pont has already taken steps to devise a means to offer investors total investor planning. Merrill Lynch says that it too is looking into estate planning, which would involve an investor's entire investment strategy.

"The idea is to insure that clients have adequate savings, proper insurance and good solid equity base, if he has the extra cash, which could be supplied through in-house money management teams handling his portfolio or through mutual funds," says Greenberg. "If there's money left over after that then we could make tax sheltered investments available to him."

Long Beach, customs brokerage and forwarding house, has announced the retirement of one of the company's senior officers, George Dwyer, vice president.

A pioneer in this field, Dwyer concludes 35 years of continuous service in the country's most active trade centers: New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles-Long Beach.

Loudon announced the election of Thomas Tello, a longtime executive in Loudon & Co.'s export division, as vice president.

HERMIE MARTY... deals with customer

Smile! You're on B of A's camera

For most bankers, deposit and loan totals are the tell-tale business indicators.

But officers at Bank of America's branch at 1840 Long Beach Blvd. may soon be relying on television ratings to find out how they're doing.

The branch, Long Beach Motor Center, has lived up to its name with the opening of two television-operated drive-up windows.

Located in a canopied auto island section about 100 feet distant from the branch building, the new units work just like conventional drive-up windows except the customer deals with the television image of the teller instead of the real thing.

When a customer rolls up to one of the television units, the first thing he sees is a picture of himself. At the same time, his picture is automatically flashed on a screen in front of a teller who works from a control center inside the branch.

THE TELLER'S image then appears on the customer's screen and, through the use of a microphone and pneumatic tube canister system, deposit or check cashing are processed as conveniently as a normal transaction.

The television tellers — only the sixth such installation in Bank of America's 1,000-branch system — provide some distinct advantages for both the bank and the customer, officials said.

First, it allows the bank to place drive-up service in areas offering the easiest access to motorists.

It also permits an expansion of branch teller service without costly or inconvenient remodeling of the building itself.

And finally, for the customer, it's fun. People just seem to enjoy watching themselves on television, officials said.

At one branch, for instance, overall teller window traffic picked up by about 30 per cent after the television windows were installed.

The Long Beach units were part of an $140,000 branch renovation project which also included the expansion of the parking areas from 45 to 66 spaces, explained vice president and manager Frank Young.

Spectrum helping in Dimes push Spectrum International, Anaheim, will introduce its new all-purpose cleaner, called "Shortcut," to the Long Beach - Lakewood area this summer in a unique manner: by helping the March of Dimes drive.

K. R. Osman, of Spectrum, said direct mailings to all mothers who participated in last year's march will receive 10 redeemable coupons introducing the new product.

By giving the coupons to neighbors and using some themselves, the Dimes drive will benefit by 35 cents for each coupon redeemed at a nearby store, Osman said.

Solid prediction

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The rate of business expansion in the coming months will depend largely on the rate of capital equipment spending, economist Frank Murphy of General Electric Co. told a conference board symposium. He predicted there will be a substantial rise this year but not as much as some surveys have indicated.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Long Beach resident Thomas Murphy has been promoted to assistant manager of United California Bank's Orange County Airport office. Prior to his appointment, Murphy was a commercial loan officer at the same branch.

Daryl Spraggue has been named manager of the Downtown Long Beach District Office for the Prudential Insurance Co., according to Frederick Schnell, senior vice president in charge of western operations.

Joseph Sheaff Jr. has been appointed manager at Wells Fargo Bank's Lakewood office, John Breeden, executive vice president in charge of the bank's Southern California operations, announced.

66 puts Lee ahead; Jack's hopes fading

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — "Well, we were kinda all bunched up," Lee Trevino said with that impudent grin, "and I figured somebody ought to do something."

So the Super Mex, the defending champion in the 101st British Open Golf Championship, did just that, swaggering and laughing his way into sole control of the third-round lead with a stunning string-five birdies on the last five holes.

The brilliant streak, which included a chip-in on the final hole and a two from a deep sand trap, staked him to a course-record-matching 66, and a one-stroke lead over England's Tony Jacklin.

Trevino had a three-round total of 207, six under par on the sunsplashed, 6,892 yards of Scottish Moors that make up the Muirfield Links just south of the Firth of Forth.

Jacklin had a 67, four under par, for 208. That set up the same final round pairing, Trevino-Jacklin, that there was a year ago when the Englishman chased Trevino to the title in the last of his three national championships.

Disappointed Jack Nicklaus, already the winner of the Masters and U.S. Open titles, saw his hopes for a never-accomplished one-year sweep of all the world's major titles fade and all but die as he drifted six strokes off the pace.

"I just haven't played well all week, Nicklaus said.

At one time late in the day, Trevino, Jacklin and

Trevino took care of that situation with his gallop down the backstretch.

"I don't think I've ever made that many in a row before," Trevino said.

With one round to go, the dapper Sanders was in third place, four strokes back of Trevino. Sanders forged a 69 despite a double bogey six for a 211 total.

Big Brian Barnes of England, a British Ryder Cup player and former tour performer on the American circuit, was the only other player with a 69-212.

match par 71 for 213 — a distant six strokes back.

"The last three holes were okay, but I just played horrible the rest of the time," said Nicklaus, his dream of an unprecedented grand slam all but shattered.

He already holds the Masters and U.S. Open titles and needs this one if he is to keep alive the string that also includes the PGA Championship in Birmingham, Mich., Aug. 3-6.

"There's one more round," he said. "Maybe I'll find something out there tomorrow. You never know."

"I've won many times from six behind. I can't see any reason I can't shoot 65. I feel like I can. But you've got to do it, not

Aggressive Rosenbloom won't hide

Late in 1967 two close friends who happened to own professional football teams sat together in the Coliseum as the Rams prepared to play the Baltimore Colts.

"You know, Carroll," said Dan Reeves, "it's a shame that good friends have to play each other and one has to lose."

"You know, Carroll," said Dan Reeves, "if it's to be me, I couldn't lose to a nicer person."

They sat there for a while longer and pretty soon Reeves, who knew he was dying of cancer said, "Well, Carroll, if anything should happen to me, I hope you'll wind up out here with the Rams."

RICH ROBERTS

"Dan," Carroll answered, "how in hell could that ever happen?"

So now Rosenbloom brings to the Rams an image that it was not in Reeves' nature to give — a public image of tough, aggressive leadership. Reeves was totally the boss and the most considerate of employers, but amid controversy would suffer in silence rather than expose himself to personal publicity. He abhorred personal publicity.

Ram fans will be very much aware of Rosenbloom's presence.

"You can certainly assume that I won't be absentee management," he assured the Southland media this week after flying in from Baltimore on a few hours' sleep. "I worry everybody."

IN SIMILAR CIRCUMSTANCES, Reeves would hide while Rosenbloom would seek confrontation.

"I had a press luncheon in Baltimore maybe two years ago at the time we were having some difficulty with one or two members of the media," Rosenbloom related. "We did not know why . . . and to this day I don't know why."

"I asked if there was anything we were doing wrong and perhaps they could help us. One of the members said, 'Well, Carroll, you don't understand that we're so used to winning maybe we're spoiled.'"

"So that gave me food for thought, and I thought, gee, whatever happens in Baltimore — if we're fortunate enough to go to the Super Bowl again, and win it — they'd say so what."

MEETING THE SOUTHLAND media, the questions came at Rosenbloom like blizzards. Some of the reporters expressed concern about the future of friends in the Rams' front office.

"Hey, wait a minute," he cried. "I haven't had any sleep and I'm normally stupid, so don't make me any worse."

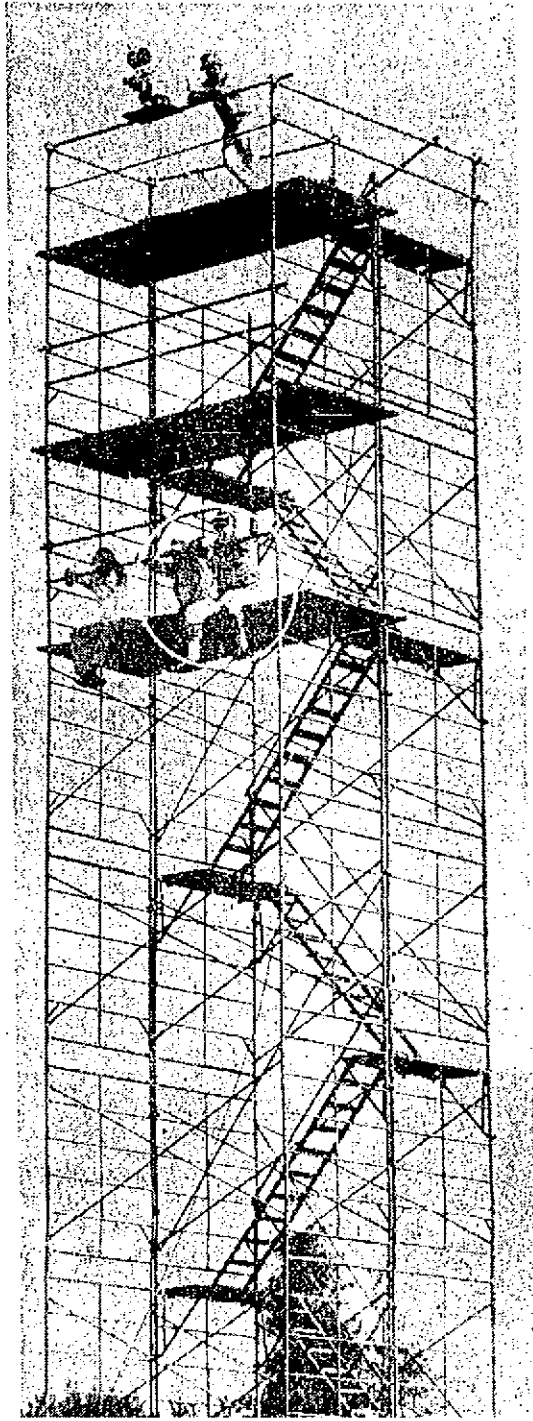

To one questioner who began, "Mr. Rosenbloom . . ." he retorted, "Uh, would you do me a favor. If you'll call me Carroll I'll feel younger."

But he also demonstrated a quick, sharp needle. In discussing rising prices and the value of sports franchises, he mentioned that newspapers in Baltimore had risen from two cents to 15

Ryan brought back to earth by Milwaukee

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — At 6 a.m. Friday morning, the Angels struggled into their hotel in downtown Milwaukee.

They had just played a game in Salt Lake City in high humidity. Reaching Milwaukee at 3 a.m. they found the airport socked in because of fog and their charter flight was diverted to Chicago.

Upon arrival in Chicago, the Angels were greeted with no visible means of ground transportation. Following a 90-minute wait punctuated with four-letter expletives and assorted epithets, the tourists took a bus ride through the low-lying fog to Wisconsin.

When they arrived, the sun was up and the Angels resembled zombies. Friday night, they played like zombies.

They were defeated by the Milwaukee Brewers, 7-3, and even the presence of Nolan Ryan could not save them on this night.

Ryan, who fortunately missed the harrowing experience of the previous evening, did not benefit by it. Although he established a club record by authoring his sixth successive complete game, he served up a pair of long home runs to Johnny Briggs and another to Ron Clark and lost for the first time since June 18.

"His fastball just didn't have the zip it usually has," explained catcher Art Kusner. "He wasn't throwing as well as he has been. He has a good curve but his fastball wasn't jumping."

in the top of the third on Ken Berry's single and Bob Oliver's 11th homer, Ryan found Briggs waiting at the plate in the home half of the inning with the bases loaded and one out.

The count extended to 3-2 and Briggs fouled off several pitches. When Ryan finally came back with a less than adequate fastball, Briggs hit it out of sight into the Milwaukee bullpen in right-center.

Clark hit a solo homer in the sixth and Briggs followed George Scott's eighth-inning single with his 13th homer of the season and fourth in his last six at-bats against the Angels.

"He didn't pitch that poorly," said manager Del Rice of Ryan's performance.

In eight innings, Ryan permitted seven hits, struck out eight and walked three. For most guys, that's a good night's work. When your name is Nolan Ryan it only qualified to be called mediocre.

Rice may have lost the game but in the game of one-upsmanship he is ahead on points in his feud with old friend Del Crandall.

Rice is the man who cost Jim Lonborg, the Brewer starter, the victory.

Crandall made a visit to the mound in the fifth inning after Lonborg walked Sandy Alomar on four pitches. Moments later, the heavens opened up and a 57-minute rain delay ensued.

When Lonborg went out after the long pause, Crandall went with him. Moments later, Rice called

EXPOS RIP DODGERS, 9-1

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Balor Moore, the young pitcher of the Montreal Expos, was in the on-deck circle when Ken Singleton crashed into Dodger catcher Chris Cannizzaro, causing a fourth inning ruckus that brought players charging from both benches.

"I wanted to break up the fight," the 21-year-old lefthander said, "and that's why I tackled Cannizzaro." Why not Singleton?

"I didn't want to hurt my own player."

Moore insisted it had nothing to do with the fact Singleton, at 6-4 and 210 pounds, towered over Cannizzaro, 5-10½ and 182 pounds.

Moore also had no reservations about the Dodger batters, hurling the Expos to a 9-1 victory on five hits Friday night for his victory in the major leagues before a throng of 39,067 on Helmet night 1.

The Expos, led by Ron

Fairly's four RBI, had little regard for the Dodgers' pitching, cuffing out a club record 17 hits off five hurlers.

For the fans, the fight was about all they had to yell about and it was slightly reminiscent of the Good Guys vs. the Bad Guys.

Once Singleton and Cannizzaro got into it, players from both dugouts charged the plate. As Moore sat on top of Cannizzaro, little Bobby Valentine, resorting to his football training, put a shoulder into Singleton and moved him away from the plate.

While the principals were immobilized, everybody else did the usual pushing and shoving and throwing few, if any, punches.

About then the Montreal bullpen raced toward the plate, bringing with it a chorus of boos. Moments later the Dodger bullpen

Oakland sweeps Yankees

A' spoil Kline's bid for no-hitter in 7th

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Oakland A's, who were unable to get a base-runner off Steve Kline in the first six innings of the opener, came back to sweep a doubleheader from the New York Yankees by 9-3 and 1-0 margins Friday night.

After the six perfect innings, Kline was guilty of a hit batsman and single and the A's took advantage of them to score four runs in the seventh inning and then went on to route the Yanks in the opener as Reggie Jackson, Mike Epstein and Bert Campaneris all homered.

In contrast, the Yanks get three runs in the first inning of the first game and didn't score again the rest of the evening.

In the second game, Campaneris and Angel Mangual led off with back-to-back doubles against Mike Kekich to give the A's their only run. Blue Moon Odom and Darold Knowles made the run stand up although the Yankees got nine hits and a pair of walks.

Rookie's HR buoys win by Seaver

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dave Schneck, playing in his first major league game, brought the New York Mets from behind with a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Tom Seaver pitched a five-hitter to beat the San Diego Padres 3-2 Friday night.

Bud Harrelson was aboard with a walk when Schneck, called up Thursday from Memphis of the Double AA Texas League, hit a drive over the right-field wall for his first big league hit. The homer defeated Steve Arlin (7-10), who allowed only two hits.

Arlin had pitched 21 consecutive scoreless innings against the Mets this season before a single by Duffy Dyer and a walk to Ted Martinez set up a New York run in the third frame. Seaver laid down a sacrifice bunt to put Dyer in position to score on Bud Harrelson's sacrifice fly.

Rose's two-run single caps uprising Reds turn back Cardinals, 6-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pete Rose's two-run single capped a three-run second inning off Rick Wise that carried Cincinnati to a 6-3 triumph over St. Louis Friday night.

Reds' left-hander Ross Grimsley, 7-3, took a one-hitter into the fifth when Donn Clendenon and Ed Crosby hit singles, Dal Maxvill forced Crosby and pinch-hitter Brant Aluya singled home a Cards run.

St. Louis' other run came in an inning later as Matty Alou opened with a triple past Bobby Tolson's outstretched glove in center field and rode home on Joe Torre's sacrifice fly.

Lou Brock and Alou singled with one out in the eighth, but Clary Carroll came on for Grimsley and got Torre to bounce into a double play on the first pitch.

Joe Morgan and Bobby Tolson added run-scoring singles for the Reds in the ninth. Jose Cruz drove in the final St. Louis run in the bottom of the ninth with a sacrifice fly.

Score—Cardinals 11, Reds 6. Inning—9th. Pitcher—Grimsley (7-3). Batter—Rose (2-R).

Perry wins 15th, 2-0

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Cleveland took advantage of two errors by Texas in the 14th inning Friday night to break a scoreless tie and hand Gaylord Perry his 15th victory as the Indians outlasted the Rangers 2-0.

With two out in the top of the 14th inning third baseman Dave Nelson bobbled a grounder by Frank Duffy, Duffy then stole second and went to third on an error by second baseman Len Randle on a grounder hit by pinch-hitter Del Unser.

Buddy Bell then singled home Duffy and John Brohaner singled in Unser with the second run.

For the first 11 innings, the game was a pitching duel between Perry and Mike Paul, who was put in the starting rotation just last week. Paul struck out 10, walked none and gave up only three hits in his 11th inning stint before he tried.

Grich packs big punch as Orioles bag twin bill

BALTIMORE (AP) — Doyle Alexander hurled a two-hitter and Bobby Grich backed him with a two-run homer, leading Baltimore to a 3-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday for a sweep of its American League twilight doubleheader.

The Orioles won the first game 7-4 as Dave Johnson drove in three runs and Dave McNally, with relief help, posted his 10th victory of the baseball season.

Alexander, 4-5, held the White Sox hitless in the nightcap until rookie Tony Muser looped a one-out single over third base with one out in the fourth inning. Ed Spiezio's leadoff single in the eighth was Chicago's only other hit.

Paul Blair led off the bottom of the fourth for the Orioles with a single off Dave Lemonds, 1-3, before Grich parked his seventh homer of the season into the Orioles' bullpen.

Baltimore scored its final run in the seventh off reliever Vicente Romo as Mark Belanger walked, Alexander sacrificed him to second and Merv Rettenmund singled.

In the opener, the Orioles scored twice in the second inning against Tom Bradley, 10-7, as Boog Powell hit his eighth homer, Grich singled and Johnson doubled.

Chicago got a run back in the third but Baltimore made it 1-1 in the fourth on Grich's single, a walk, McNally's double and an error, then added another run in the fifth on Terry Crowley's double and Brooks Robinson's single.

The White Sox knocked out McNally, 10-7, in the sixth as Dick Allen hit a two-run homer, his 19th. Rick Reichardt doubled and Carlos May and Spiezio singled to cut the margin to 5-4. But Dave Leonard and Roric Harrison silenced Chicago the rest of the way while Johnson wrapped it up for Baltimore with a two-run single in the seventh.

Mayberry's single subdues Tigers, 1-0

DETROIT (UPI) — John Mayberry singled home the only run of the game in the fourth inning and three Kansas City pitchers shut out the Detroit Tigers 1-0 Friday night in the first major league game that had two brothers behind the plate.

Bill Haller was the home plate umpire while his brother Tom caught and batted for the Tigers.

Winner Bruce Dal Canton (5-3), limited Detroit to three hits in seven innings and none at all until Jim Northrup laced a single to center with two out in the sixth.

Lefty Tom Burgmeier came on after Dal Canton walked Dick McAuliffe leading off the eighth and threw the Detroit runner out on a sacrifice bunt attempt by Aurelio Rodriguez. Ken Wright came in when Al Kaline pinch hit and gave up a single to him, which sent Rodriguez to third, but he struck out Willie Horton and got Norm Cash on a pop up to subdue the most serious threat by Detroit.

Loser Joe Coleman (11-8) wasn't touched for a hit until Amos Otis doubled over third leading off the fourth. Two outs later Mayberry lashed a single over second to score the only run of the game.

Bulky field vies in Gold Cup today

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

The 33rd running of the $175,000 Hollywood Gold Cup today at Hollywood Park quite easily could resemble a Wild, Wild West rodeo around the first turn and down the stretch since 14 horses are expected to go to the post and anytime that many equines are on the same track, that means a lot of bumping and rough-riding.

Reason for the large field, which will be the biggest group to run for the $100,000 first prize since Prince Blessed led 13 rivals home in 1961, is that three expected "big" horses—Cougar II, Triple Bend and Typecast—chose to bypass the classic.

As a result, several horses which might have been scared away from the mile and one-quarter decided to shoot for their moon.

Sixteen horses actually were entered, but two, Carven III and Balcony's Babe, were placed on the also-eligible list and won't draw into the race unless two of the top 14 entrants are scratched.

The race is completely wide-open and pre-race favoritism will be a difficult thing to establish.

However, the chase would seem to break down into two sections:

1. A group which includes Droll Role, Quack, Bicker, Buzkashi and Kennedy Road, the classiest contenders on past form.

2. The others—Manta, Comtal, Fignero, Aggressively, Imaginative, War Heim, Single Agent, Brush Dawn, Panzer Chief and maybe the also-eligibles.

Droll Role, latest handi-cap star to emerge in the East might go off the favorite, The 4-year-old colt has won three consecutive stakes at three different tracks and has proven to be an easy shipper.

Droll Role captured major events in New York, Chicago and Boston, and gets in today's field with 119 pounds, which, astonishingly, is the high weight of this Gold Cup field.

Quack and Bicker hope to become the first 3-year-old to win the Gold Cup since Round Table accomplished the feat in 1957. Round Table was the only colt of his age to win this race since it was inaugurated in 1938.

Wide-open Futurity tonight at Alamitos

Despite the appearance of the finest western-based two-year-old quarter horses in training, a pair of winless juveniles will be trying for their maiden victory tonight in the $115,000 Golden State Futurity, which will have its third unveiling at Los Alamitos.

But the task facing Fay's Joy and One Bold Broad seems too much when one notes that the field includes Futurity Trials winners Value Added, Go Chickie Go and Penny From Heaven, plus such classy youngsters as Burma Shan, Hop Skip and Jump, Election Day, Lady Winsmore and Pocket.

Value Added was the quickest of the qualifiers by winning his heat in 18.10, while it took Go Chickie Go an official 18.19 in her heat win and Penny From Heaven was only the seventh fastest qualifier at 18.27.

An asterisk should be appended to the latter time since it came after the field had warmed up for the event, then recalled to the paddock when machine failure delayed the start of the race 33 minutes.

Of the non-trials winners, the toughest may well be Burma Shan, the War Chick colt who won his lifetime debut, then has been winless in six starts. But those latter races include five runovers and one third—with three of the setbacks inflicted by the brilliant Love Charge, Burma Shan's qualifying time was 18.13, which makes him second best in the field. That race heat, won by Value Added, produced seven of the 10 starters for tonight's race, which will distribute $51,750 to the winner and range the payoffs down to $1,150 for the last finish.

In all, 24 horses were divided through the three sections in the qualifying heats.

Adair, leading rider at the track, normally rides Osage Rocket, the three-year-old filly that was second in the recent $87,700

Los Alamitos Derby. However, he also is Kaweah Bar's regular rider, and he decided to stick with the two-time world titlist.

At the start, Osage Rocket broke clear on the outside of the six-horse field, but Mr. Jet Moore, in the next stall, bore and bumped Inky's Angel and forced the latter into Royal Doulton. Meanwhile, Kaweah Bar, breaking from the two slot, was off rather slowly.

Osage Rocket maintained her advantage all the way to the wire, with Kaweah Bar overtaking the others. However, with Osage Rocket tying the track record of 19.9 seconds for 400 yards, the palomino couldn't make up the difference.

Calumet star heads field at Monmouth

Eastern Fleet, who has been sprinting to victory for Calumet Farm frequently of late, will try to win again today. But this time it will be at a distance.

The Calumet 4-year-old was among a 10-horse field entered for the $100,000-added Amory L. Haskell Handicap over 1 1/4 miles at Monmouth Park.

Eastern Fleet has won four races in a row, but none longer than seven furlongs. He will carry high weight of 117 pounds in the Haskell and oppose such as Jersey Derby winner Smiling Jack, 112; West Coast Scout, 113; Hitchcock, 112 and Beaukins, 112.

Smiling Jack might skip the Haskell and go in the $75,000-added, 1 1/4-mile Dwyer Handicap at Aqueduct, for which he also was entered Friday.

Heading a field of 10 3-year-olds entered for the Dwyer were Sportique, who will be making his stakes debut; Bishop, winner of the Pontiac Grand Prix, and Ruritanis, runner-up in the Belmont Stakes. Sportique will carry 117 pounds, one less than Smiling Jack. King's Bishop will tote 112 and Ruritanis 112.

Three-year-old fillies will be featured Sunday in the $50,000-added, 1 1/4-mile Delaware Oaks at Delaware Park. Wanda, the Mother Goose winner, will carry high weight of 121 pounds, and spot from seven to 10 pounds to 11 rivals. Getting a 10-pound advantage will be Light Hearted, seeking her first stakes victory but winner of all five of her 1972 starts, each of them allowance races at Delaware Park.

Other stakes winners in the field will be Monolith, Grotton Miss, Controlled Landing and Cathy Baby.

Other features today will include the $50,000-added President's Cup Handicap for 3-year-olds on closing day at Ak-Sar-Ben; the Gettysburg Claiming Stakes, which has been split into two nine-horse, $20,000-added divisions at Liberty Bell Park, and the $25,000-added Janice H. Handicap for fillies and mares at Arlington Park, which is headed by the entry of Main Pan and Sonny Says Quick.

Scorn of the victims of the bus bandits of the Baltimore Beltway will have their day at the races today.

Landry not writing off Thomas yet

Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry said Friday the club still wants Duane Thomas to play this year, and that he was not yet ready to write off the moody halfback's services.

"When I think it has gone to the point of no return," Landry said, "then something will happen. Right now, I don't believe anything's happened to that extreme."

Thomas showed up late to training camp Wednesday night along with a friend Redie Price, who had a brief tryout with the Cowboys last Sunday. Price was cut from the squad after less than a day.

After 20 minutes of conversation with Landry, most of it from Price, both Thomas and Price left and have not been heard from since.

Cowboys vice president Gil Brandt said Thomas wanted Price to stay in the dormitory at Cal Lutheran College where the Cowboys train. That idea was rejected.

Landry admitted he was mystified by Thomas' actions. It was not the first time.

"I have no idea why he left," Landry said. "I really never had a chance to talk with him. I was trying to determine what the other fellow (Price) was there for and what he wanted."

"Before I knew it they were on their way. I've spoken to Duane enough to know when it's time to talk to him and when it's not. This wasn't the time."

Steelers — Olivia Postle injured left knee was placed in a sling but the extent of damage to running back remained uncertain.

Jets — Guard Roy Kirksey sustained a bruised shoulder and will be idle for at least two days.

Packers — Clarence Ellis, Atlanta's No. 1 draft choice from Notre Dame, left a bloodied nose in his first game. He will have to see if surgery is necessary.

Saints — Tackle Kent Brantley, a fifth-round pick from Houston, missed out of last night's game Friday after one of his knees was injured.

Two worders, Mike and the third rounder, to call so far. Linebacker Bob Skyes, a free agent from USC, left Thursday.

Cowboys — Rookie running back Tim Todd of Cal was cut.

Trevino 1-stroke leader

just talk about it. We'll see."

Nicklaus three-putted the first hole but got the stroke back when he chipped to two feet for a birdie four on the ninth. He bogeyed the 12th and 14th, missing the green badly each time; chipped in for a bird on the 16th, and made birdie on the 17th, a par five.

He put his second shot on the green there and gave the eagle putt a great try. "I left it 3 1/2 feet short," he said.

Trevino, paired with Jacklin in the final two some of the bright, warm, sunny day, trailed most of the time, matching an early bogey with a two-putt bird on the fifth, then making eight consecutive pars.

Then it all got started on the 14th, he said.

Trevino, who made that incredible blitz of three national Open titles a year ago, ran in an 18-foot birdie putt on the 14th, then scored from 20 feet on the next hole.

"I lost my concentration a little on the next one, the par three," he said. "I reached in the bag for my six iron and the grip came off. Yeah, came right off. I rewrapped it and put the club on the ground and hit the ball."

He dumped it into a very difficult lie in a deep bunker. He had to hit almost straight down on the ball. It hit on the green, skipped once and ducked into the cup on the fly, jumping in like a coyote-chased rabbit going in his hole.

He reached the green on the par-five 17th with a fantastic drive and a five iron second shot, then two-putted for his fourth consecutive birdie.

That brought him into a tee with Jacklin, who had also birdied the 15th and 17th also.

He put his second shot over the green in light rough and Jacklin was on in two. Trevino surveyed the situation in typical fashion, staking about the green, nervously twirling a wedge in his hand, then chipped it in for his fifth consecutive birdie.

Tony, who won this title in 1969 and captured the U.S. Open the following year, barged into sole control of the top spot with a brilliant eagle three on the fifth, hitting a threewood second shot to within nine feet and making the putt.

Trevino drew even with him on the 15th, but Jacklin dropped an 18-foot putt birdie on top of Trevino's 20-footer to go in front again, turned and grinned at Lee as if to say: it's not over yet.

He also scored a two-putt birdie on the 17th, but even a brilliant 67 wasn't enough to keep him even.

Sanders, victim of a triple bogey seven on the 11th hole of the second round, once had a share of the lead.

Rut the greying veteran who has won 19 tour titles but never a major championship again met disaster. He took a six on the par four 14th. His first two were in the rough and he missed the green in three, then three-putted from off the fringe.

Aging Arnold Palmer had a sparkling 69 despite a painful neck ailment.

"It's a muscle between my left shoulder and my neck," Palmer said. He received treatment for it three times.

"It's sore as hell," he said.

He was two over par at 215.

Johnny Miller, who had set the course record just the day before, managed a 72-214.

South African Gary Player, just one stroke off the lead when the day's play started, fell back with a 76. He was a distant 11 strokes behind at 218.

Keeping one eye on the stars and one eye on the readers

TV-Radio Editor

A television editor doesn't watch the tube all the time; sometimes he opens his mail. Would you care to read over my shoulder?

"I agree with you 100 per cent about the astro freaks — but I'm afraid you'll find you just opened up a large can of worms. Now I predict your mail bag to runneth over, calling you a few assorted four-letter words, calling on the editor of the L.P.T. to have you flogged in public, burned at the stakes or sent to Outer Mongolia."

"I just thought I'd cheer you up and let you know you have 'one' reader who thinks astrology is so much camel dung."

"P.S.: Don't print my name; I like living in Long Beach."

"P.P.S.: Merv Griffin lost me as a viewer some time back. He thinks he saps the cutest things. I prefer a wind-up Panda doll."

Long Beach
(I haven't received all that many attacks yet; maybe the horoscope fol-lowers are waiting for the right day to write.)

"WHY ARE you so smart when you talk about Merv Griffin's show? He is the best thing on TV. He really knows how to put on a good show."

"Astrology is at least better to talk about than sex. You better get with it. I can see you don't like clean fun shows."

"I am not alone when it comes to Merv. I know lots of people who love Merv. I think you are the stupid one. You and your scientists. Boo. You know that's not what the most of people are interested in. Not when it comes to entertainment."

"Guess you are for that McGovern. You sound about like him. I am Merv's fan, not yours."

"What's your birthday sign? Better start looking up what you are. Some day you will believe in your sign. Get with it, join the crowd."

Long Beach
(I didn't write anything about not liking Merv or his show. As a matter of fact, I watch him quite often. I'd just like to see someone talk back to his astrology buffs. Incidental-ly, how does it look for McGovern in the election?)

"YOUR IGNORANCE is showing, Mr. Martin."

"Why don't you do a lit-tle research on astrology before you spout the 'non-sense' you so glibly used in your column? You'd be surprised at what you can learn with a little study. You would find astrology is an exact science. 'Hur-rah for Merv Griffin. I shall become a regular lis-tener. At least you have done that much.'"

Mrs. Helen R. Gray
Cerritos

"YOU PROBABLY have not heard the old maxim. 'Condemnation — before investigation — is the epitome of ignorance' — and so we forgive you for the outlandish statements in your column."

"Where you go wrong is to confuse the 'sun' signs published in the papers with a true reading of a birth of a person, set up for the exact moment of birth; day, hour, minute, years, longitude, latitude—and then allowances must be made for the hereditary genes of the person..."

"No astrologer will tell you that this is what will happen — most likely, he will say this will happen if you do so and so — for he will impress on your mind that you are in command of your free will and the final decision...is yours to make..."

George C. Weisner
Lynwood

(But do I need an astrologer to tell me that?)

Imports moving ahead in sales

By BILL EMERY
Associate Auto Editor

Imported car sales have been plagued for the past 12 months by domestic dock strikes, the dollar devaluation, home plant strikes and currently, Japan is experiencing labor problems tying up shipping of cars to the United States.

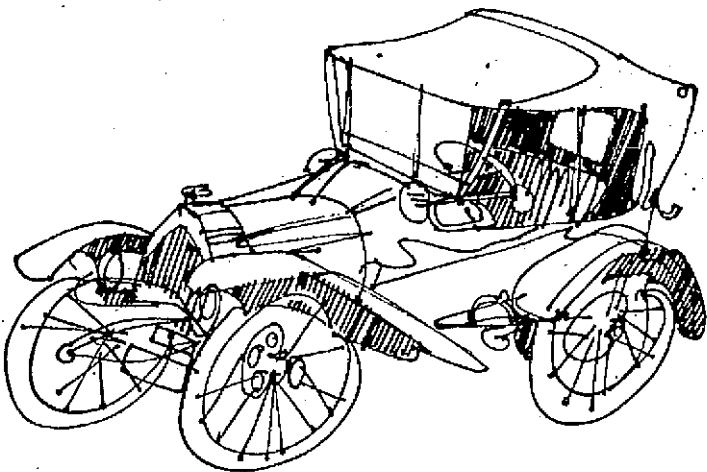

It's enough to make a grown man cry. In spite of the handicaps, the imports still maintain a strong position in the Southland's automotive sales structure and some makes are even gaining in sales over last year, although many are readjusting their sales forecasts.

Still, when considering the total package offered, the imports are extremely competitive and offer much more than just styling, which reflects itself in the used car market price-wise.

DOMESTICS ARE offered at a price competitive with the lowest priced economy imports, in fact, in many cases, the domestics have a price advantage, however, in comparing the features offered, such as radial ply tires, independent suspension and other factory equipped features, the imports still enjoy a favorable advantage.

Car buyers will do well to shop the imports for both economy and quality. And, like anything else, the more you pay, the more you get.

Surviving collision is a must!

The black and white four-door sedan from Daimler-Benz, the world's oldest automobile manufacturer, looks more like something ready for the showroom than for crashing head-on into a concrete wall at 50 m.p.h.

But, collisions, and the ability to survive them, are the reasons for building this experimental safety vehicle, or ESV for short.

Daimler-Benz is the world's only manufacturer to display two versions of its ESV, and the only manufacturer, as far as is known, to have any of the test dummy passengers "survive" a 50-m.p.h. crash into a concrete barrier.

It is called ESV 13, and is the 13th version in a series of on-going experiments designed to meet or exceed the U.S. and German Government's specifications for experimental vehicles that serve as possible forerunners of safer production cars.

In earlier tests, both the right front-seat passenger and the right rear-seat passenger were deemed to have "survived" 50-mile an hour crashes.

The inability of the available test dummies to accurately transmit data was believed to be one of the reasons for the "death" of the other rear-seat passenger.

It's a convert-- truck to camper

Ford Division's new compact pickup truck, Courier, can be converted easily into a recreational vehicle for weekends and vacations.

It has the load-carrying capability required for a shell camper and the space to nail trail-bikes, skis or surfboards.

"Courier offers the best of two worlds," said Robert D. Martin, Ford Division light truck and recreational vehicle sales manager. "It's a tough, hard-working pickup that is easily adaptable for many recreational uses. From a hunting trip to a tailgate party after a football game, Courier can be the sportsman's best friend.

portation needs of the hunter, surfer, camper or skier without upsetting his recreational budget."

Noting that one of every four compact trucks now on the road is used for recreation, Martin said Courier's appeal also should be strong to people who use it for personal transportation.

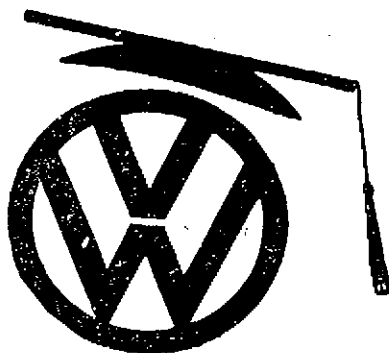

Courier's pickup box is 74 inches long, 62 inches wide. It can be fitted with shell campers now on the market which can sleep two adults comfortably.

Martin said that Courier's size affords good handling, agility and ease of parking. It also has the stability, power and load-carrying ability needed for long trips. The payload is 1,400 pounds.

LITTLE pickup features 1800-cc four-cylinder engine with four-speed transmission to give it pep and economy.

Sports car sales hit high

Triumph sports car sales in the U.S. set an all-time any-month record in June, it has been announced by British Leyland Motors Inc. which markets them in this country. The company also reported that sales for the first six months of 1972 were the highest ever recorded in the first half of a year.

In June of this year, 2,482 Triumphs were sold at retail compared to 2,234 last year for an increase of 11 per cent.

SAAB NAMED one of five cars with futuristic features

MAGAZINE CHOOSES SAAB

Car of future today

The Swedish-made Saab 99E has been named a "car of the future" by editors of Popular Science Magazine.

The Saab's advanced features, which editors feel will be standard on cars of future, include front wheel drive, electronic fuel injection, five mph bumpers and "a body shell that's just about the ultimate in structural strength and safety."

In reporting on the Swedish Saab, the automotive experts say: "The Saab 99E steel body includes strong windshield profiles, reinforced door sills, and side members able to withstand lateral impact — all to insure that the passenger compartment remains intact in a severe collision."

"Most manufacturers are building even more strength into their bodies — the Saab leads in this area. Next year, all cars sold in the U.S. will have five mph bumpers. Saab put them on a full year before required."

ON THE subject of front wheel drive, the magazine notes that front wheel drive "gives better directional stability, no matter what your speed. On dry roads, the front-drive cars showed consistent and predictable handling characteristics. In a skid, their ability to recover was vastly superior. We drove the cars at 70 mph in cross winds gusting up to 40-45 mph, and were impressed with their ability to stay on course without steering corrections. Even the light Saab was superior to heavy rear-drive cars."

The electronic fuel injection was also cited as offering "wonderful driveability" even immediately after starting on cold mornings.

Alfasuds now in production

Alfa Sud has begun shipping new models from its new factory. Building equipping and organizing the facility for production took about four years.

Currently, production totals 70 cars a day and is projected to reach 500 a day by year's end and 1,000 for 1973.

The model being built is called the Alfasud. It is a four-door sedan with a 1,200-c.c. engine. A two-door version will go into production at the end of 1972, with a station wagon, coupe and cabriolet scheduled for 1973.

Safety buckles up

Volkswagen's new safety belts give front seat occupants the security of combination lap-shoulder belts without the feeling of being strapped in. In addition, a dashboard warning light and a buzzer make it hard to "forget" to buckle up.

The belt system permits wearers to move freely as when reaching across the car into the glove box. In a sudden stop a vehicle motion sensor, built into the reel housing, responds to car movements much like the "tilt" mechanism in a pinball machine, locking the belt and rostraining the occupant.

WHEN BRAKING or cornering hard, the belts also lock up. In addition, a webbing motion sensor — an inertia reel — provides a secondary, back-up locking mechanism to prevent the belt from unreeling.

When not in use, the belts retract automatically into the reel housing where they are kept clean and handy for putting on the next time the car is driven.

French car sales are up to 1969 level

After two anxious years of recession on their home market, French automobile manufacturers are selling cars at the 1969 level again.

New-car registrations during the first quarter of 1972 were up 15.1 per cent over 1970.

The sudden boom is working out to the French companies' advantage so far: Imports, while rising with demand, have been held to around 20 per cent of the market.

While easing of credit heavily stimulated consumer buying, the main impetus has come from a series of new models, ranging from Chrysler's Simca 1100 and Citroen's GS — both launched a year ago and now coming into their own — to Renault's R-15, R-17 and its baby R-5.

Sales increase

Total sales for the year ended Dec. 31, 1971, were slightly more than $3 billion, an increase of approximately seven percent over 1970 sales.

The figures include total sales for Fiat, OM and Autobianchi.

There's a new place in town to test-drive a Saab 99E.

The new Saab 99E is the kind of car you have to drive to believe.

It has front-wheel drive for better traction, handling and stability than traditional cars.

It has a standard 4-cylinder, 1.85 liter, fuel-injected overhead cam engine for economy and performance.

And it has impact-absorbing bumpers unique in the automotive industry. These bumpers prevent minor bumps from becoming major repair bills, and reduce your collision insurance rates 15% at Allstate.

The Saab 99E is now easier to test-drive than ever, too. Because there's a new dealer in the area. Us. This makes it easier for you to buy a Saab 99E. And it assures you of quick, dependable service once you own it.

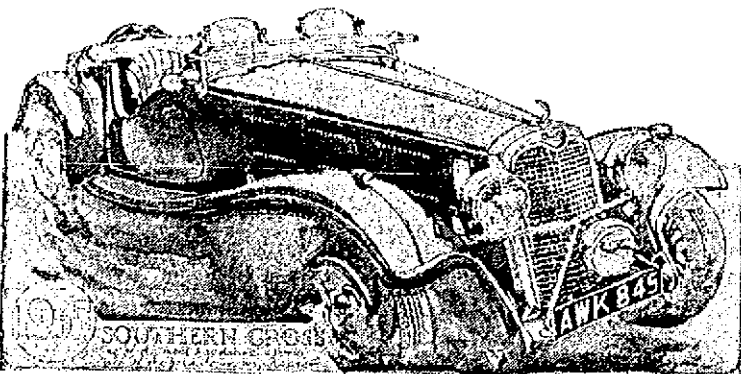

Saab is also expanding its dealer network in other parts of the country, so a Saab owner can get sales and service just about anywhere he goes.

So before you buy any car, test-drive a SAAB 99E. Come to the new place in town today. Before you buy theirs, drive ours.

First rotary-engine wagon introduced

Anticipating 60,000 sales in the U.S. this year, Mazda Motors of America introduced a completely new line of rotary-engine automobiles, including America's first rotary-engine station wagon. The company also bowed the Mazda Sport Truck, America's lowest priced half ton pickup truck.

Mazda's Sport Truck is the lowest priced entry in the nation's booming pickup truck market. With a cargo bay more than 6 ft. long and nearly 5 ft. wide, the Sport Truck can carry more than one-half ton of payload. It features a rugged frame chassis, heavy-duty suspension and a four-speed synchromesh transmission.

Double latched tailgate, fully padded instrument panel, hydraulic jack, front/rear traction hooks and white wall tires are also included among the standard equipment.

AN OPTIONAL on the cab, protective side trim mouldings, special Sport Truck decals and a sports-car-type console. Other luxury options include air conditioning, AM-FM radio and stereo tape deck.

The new line of passenger cars called the RX-3 features a high-performance sport coupe and a stylish four-door sedan, in addition to the wagon.

MAZDA SPORT TRUCK has also been introduced ... featuring heavy-duty suspension, double-latch tail gate, hydraulic jack, front/rear traction hooks.

1972 marks the 25th year of MG sales in the United States and officials of British Leyland Motors Inc. state that the sale of the first MG, a TC model, sparked the sports car boom in this country with California and the Los Angeles-Long Beach area leading the way. Current MGs are still Southland favorites—the new MGB convertible (above), the MGB/GT fastback and the budget priced MG Midget.

VW gives Beetle to Smithsonian

The 15-millionth Volkswagen Beetle to roll off the assembly line was presented to the Smithsonian Institution by Volkswagen of America, U.S. importer of the bug-shaped automobile.

"This light blue car symbolizes the continuing contribution the Beetle is making to personal transportation around the world," said Tony Weaver, Volkswagen community relations manager, who presented the car to the Smithsonian.

On February 17, the 15,007,034th Beetle was built, surpassing the production record held since 1927 by Ford's Model T, making the Beetle the most produced auto in the world.

"When the first two Beetles were imported in 1949," Weaver said, "people laughed. No one would have guessed then that in 1972 there would be more than 4 million Volkswagens on U.S. roads and that the Beetle would have such a profound effect on American life. We are sure that the 1973 Beetles will continue producing Volkshare."

The sporty Subaru

New factories are planned in Ireland

Toyota and Nissan are planning invasions of the European auto market from assembly bases in Ireland, according to the London Financial Times.

The Financial Times said Toyota is expected to begin production of its Corolla model in a new Dublin plant late this fall.

Nissan's plans were less clear, but are believed to be more extensive. Trade sources said Nissan is expected to reach partnership agreement with an existing motor assembler in Dublin.

Toyota and Datsun will ship some 200,000 cars to Europe from Japan this year. Both makers are said to be impressed with Ireland as a European base, since Ireland voted to join the Common Market.

No matter which new Audi you choose you still get 7 cars.

Every one of the Audis you see below has a lot in common with 7 of the finest cars in the world.

1. They all have the same type of steering system as the racing Ferrari.

2. They all have the same type of brakes as the racing Porsche.

3. They all have front-wheel drive like the Cadillac Eldorado.

4. They all have independent front suspension like the Aston Martin.

5. They all have an interior that bears a remarkable resemblance to the Mercedes-Benz 280 SE.

6. They all have just about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.

7. They all get the same kind of expert service as a Volkswagen.

Our Audi 100LS is the car you've heard so much about. Well, this year we gave it a larger engine as well as a better ventilation system.

Our two other Audis are completely new models.

There's the Audi 100 which doesn't cost quite as much as our 100LS because it isn't quite as fancy. But like we said, it has the same outstanding features as some of the world's most expensive cars.

And there's the Audi 100GL. It's got a vinyl roof, a center console, tinted windows and an automatic transmission—all as standard equipment. So naturally, it costs a little more than the other Audis.

The Audi 100, the Audi 100LS, the Audi 100GL.

No matter which one you buy, you get a lot of cars for the money.

Sport coupe makes debut

SUBTLE horizontal lines, tastefully understated grille and up-sweep in rear quarter panel are features of new Fiat 128 sport coupe.

The Fiat 128 Sport Coupe, an exhilarating combination of Italian coachwork and impressive performance, made its official American debut at the International Automobile Show in New York.

It boasts exceptional interior space for four adults combined with the kind of balanced performance that both average people and the auto aficionado appreciate.

"I believe Fiat has surpassed itself in this latest edition of the 128 front drive line," D. E. Manning, president and chief executive officer of Fiat-Roosevelt Motors Inc., American importer-distributor, said. "I think the 128 Sport Coupe will be an instant classic and we expect to sell as many as Fiat S.p.A. can ship."

IN CALIFORNIA VW's comply with emission control

The California Air Resources Board has notified Volkswagen of America that 1972 Volkswagen vehicles tested in the ARB laboratory comply fully with the state's exhaust emission control requirements.

The ARB report was based upon results of a recent test program and showed that exhaust emissions of VW vehicles are within the limits set by California law, regarded as the most strict in the United States.

THE RECENT tests were conducted after ARB officials reported that a number of VW's, taken at random from a port storage area had failed California's hot 7 - mode test.

Colt off to good start in import auto race

The Dodge Colt starts its first full model year with some engineering improvements, a great reception and a very bright future.

The Dodge entry in the mini car sweepstakes entered the domestic market on a piecemeal regional marketing basis beginning in January of 1971 and scored a major success in each market as it was introduced.

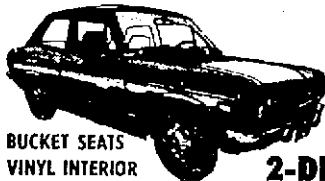

"By the introduction of the 1972 Model, the Dodge Colt was in every major metro market in the nation," according to Arthur G. Kirchner, Dodge general sales manager. "We're anticipating 80,000 Colts in 1972, nearly twice as many as the 36,000 we marketed in the nine-month period of the 1971 Colt model year."

"By 1975," he said, "Dodge expects to be receiving 125,000 Colts for the American automobile marketplace."

Running improvements have been completed on Colt since its first introduction to newsmen in the final quarter of 1970.

Life of cars in Sweden 12.4 years

Life expectancy of cars in Sweden increased from 10.4 years in 1963 and 1966 to 12.4 years in 1971, almost 20 percent, according to a special report made by AB Svensk Bilprovning, the Swedish motor vehicle inspection agency.

"The life expectancy of passenger cars decreased appreciably during the 1950s and the beginning of the 1960s," the report said. "It was estimated to be 13 to 14 years in the first half of the 1950s and had decreased to a little more than 10 years."

IS IT A STATION WAGON?

Assets are hidden

It's fast
for fun

The sheer fun of sports car driving is important to sports car buyers—important enough to make the mid-engined 914 the best selling model in Porsche history. The formula for fun is unchanged for 1972 but subtle refinements should make the Porsche 914 roadster a greater delight to drive.

The 914 borrows a concept that Porsche used successfully in winning the World Manufacturers' Championship for three years in succession. Its cooled fuel injection engine is installed behind the passenger compartment, but ahead of the rear axle. This layout helps give the 914 more practical features than one would expect in other two-seat sports cars.

Volvo's 1972 lineup features the Swedish automaker's first new sports car in 12 years.

Featuring a luggage compartment one and a half times that of Volvo sedans, the new 1800ES fastback coupe (below) introduces an innovative rear compartment concept. The roof, which extends almost to the back of the car, blends into a frameless rear window which serves as a door to the 35-cubic foot luggage area.

In announcing the new model, Volvo, Inc. President Stig Jansson remarked, "We expect the 1800ES will appeal to sportsmen and long-distance tourers who are looking for a sports car with ample luggage space."

The new model combines the styling of a sports car with the practicality of a station wagon to satisfy the motoring needs of a number of consumers."

The completely flat and carpeted rear compartment has three storage areas with the center compartment housing the spare tire, jack and tools.

Notable improvements are built-in head restraints, infinite-position reclining seats and a lumbar support adjustment for individual comfort control. This adjustment gives motorists a choice of hard or soft seat support according to their individual preferences.

DATSUN's new pickup has been restyled with smooth outer lines, dual headlights, curved sides and flared wheel wells. Also new is sweeping side windows without windwings.

June sets year's record for Datsun

Robert O. Link, Vice President of Sales for the Nissan Motor Corporation in U.S.A. (Datsun) reported that retail sales for the month of June established a year to date high of 23,412 vehicles. Of the total vehicles sold, passenger cars accounted for 17,496 sales with pickup trucks recording 5,916 sales.

In addition to being the best sales month this year, June was also the third straight month showing a healthy increase. This upswing in sales has led company officials to believe that the majority of Datsun dealers have made the adjustment from a seller's market, that existed prior to the revaluation of the yen, to a buyer's market.

Volvo joins Peugeot, Renault

As far back as 1966, Renault and Peugeot, both large French automobile manufacturers, saw a great advantage in a pool of efforts to achieve better and above all more economical automotive manufacturing techniques.

The association is in effect an unusual melding of research and development facilities to enable the companies to individually face competition from larger automobile manufacturers.

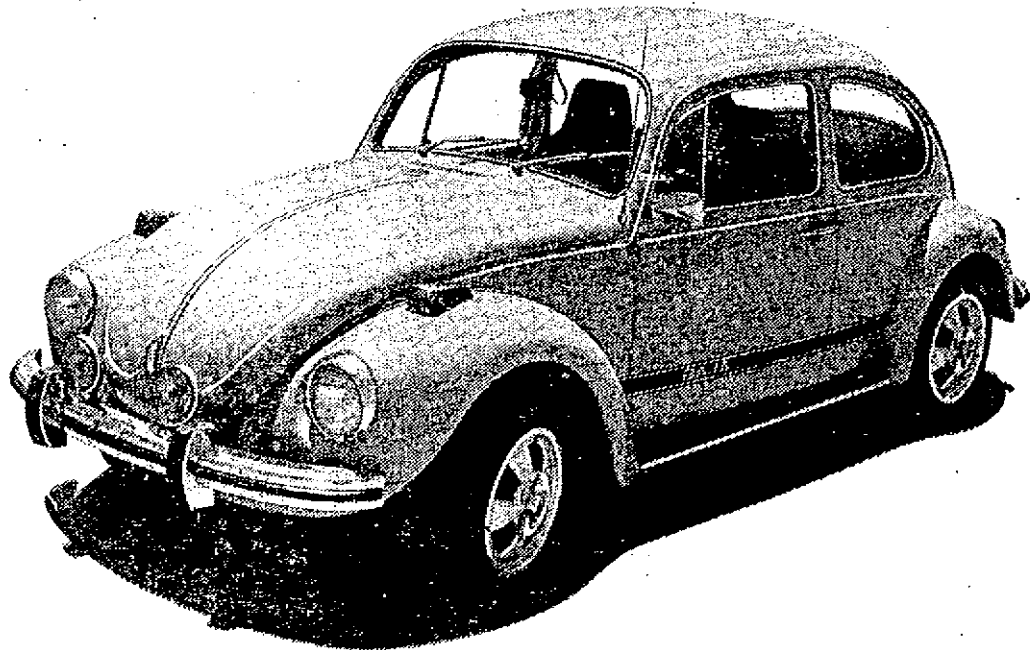

The first step was a reorganization of the research and development departments. Engineers and researchers would inform one another of different projects in the works, and share in the results. This has been particularly true for the study of automatic transmission problems.

A Renault engineer is in the Peugeot facility at La Garenne and he runs the project from there. The speed test track used in automatic transmission projects, which is at Belchamp belongs to both companies.

ACTUALLY the most important result of this co-op arrangement between the two firms is the creation of the Francaise de Mecanique, a corporation which resulted in the construction of a plant at Douvrin opened on May 5th, 1971. In July, 1971, Volvo joined the Renault-Peugeot group, which of course increases the importance of this factory; creating opportunity for expansion. This plant in the north of France is one of the most important ones in Europe making automobile engines.
